Poole, Gaines Deny Drinking Charge; Case Nearing Jury

Accused Patrolman Takes Stand Twice, Unequivocally Contradicts Testimony That He Was Intoxicated, Driving Fast.

INJURED GIRL TELLS STORY OF ACCIDENT

Miss Cannon Brought in on Stretcher; Case Expected To Reach Jury
Early This Afternoon.

BY L. A. FARRELL,
Staff Correspondent.

ADEL, Ga., Feb. 12.—The Poole case will go to the jury early tomorrow afternoon.

Taking of testimony was completed tonight after the jury had heard two statements from the defendant, Patrolman A. Douglas Poole, of Atlanta, who is charged with murder, his partner, Patrolman Hoyt D. Gaines, and the testimony of a long line of defense witnesses and state's rebuttal witnesses.

Drama followed drama as court seated adjournment when Miss Elizabeth Cannon, one of the survivors of the fatal crash for which Poole is being tried, testified from a stretcher in the courtroom and was followed by the accused upon the stand to deny the charges made against him.

Arguments in the case are to begin at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. By agreement they will run three hours to each side, being concluded about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, allowing 40 minutes for the charge of the trial judge, William Rufus Smith, of Nashville.

5 Lawyers for Each Side.

It has not been decided which of the attorneys will speak Saturday, but it is expected that three lawyers will appear for each side. Solicitor-General Henry C. Morgan, Colonel Homer
Nelson and former Senator E. D.
Rivers for the prosecution; Noel Valdosta, of Atlanta; E. D. Wilson, of Valdosta, and William Schley Howard, of Atlanta, for the defense. The defense having put up testimony, the state will have the opening and closing arguments.

In his two statements today Poole vehemently denied that he had taken a drink of liquor on the trip from Atlanta to Adel, where the fatal wreck occurred. The first came just before the defense rested its case and was of 20 minutes' duration. The second, which came in rebuttal, was made just before adjournment, the defendant having been recalled to deny a charge that when he was taken to hospital he was unable to walk, but instead of a hospital. This was alleged in the testimony of Sheriff Virgil Rooks, appearing as a rebuttal witness for the state.

Courtroom Jammed.

As the trial moved toward a close there was not a vacant seat in the courtroom. Hundreds were lined along the walls and in the windows and the corridors were filled.

The crowd overflowed into the streets. Two women in the courtroom fainted and had to be given medical attention. But the medical attention, like everything else in Adel, was present and the two victims were soon revived.

Poole is on trial for murder in connection with the death of Miss Winnie.

TAYLOR OVERDUE, FAILURE TO ARRIVE PUZZLES SHERIFF

Phone Message Indicates Convicted Ex-City Clerk Is "Somewhere on Highway" in Georgia.

Walter Taylor Friday night was believed to be on his way to Atlanta by motor, somewhere on the highway between Adel, Ga., and this city. Taylor called Sheriff James I. Lowry's office Friday afternoon and said, "I have just gotten your message and will be in in the morning."

The former city clerk, expected by the sheriff's office all day Friday, appeared to start a 12-month chain gag sentence on city graft charges, courthouse officials believed. No move has been made by Taylor to appear in the federal supreme court, his last hope, lawyers say, in escaping the sentence of Fulton superior court.

Answering a telegram sent to south
Georgia by Sheriff Lowry Thursday, Taylor telephoned late Friday afternoon that he will arrive in Atlanta this morning and will surrender.

The telephone call came at 4:30 o'clock and was received by Chief Deputy Claude Register.

The call was traced and found to have been placed at Adel, L. A. Farrell, Constitution staff correspondent, covering the Poole trial, found that the call was placed in a drug store by Taylor and that he then left immediately, headed northward.

The sheriff's office here was puzzled
Friday night as to just what Taylor, reported to have left a tourist camp near Valdosta at 5 o'clock Friday morning, had reached a point no further north than Adel, which is only 30 miles from Valdosta on the railroad.

FRENCH CHAMBER FAVORS SUFFRAGE

Senate Approval Yet To Be Given "Votes for Women" Measure.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today voted overwhelmingly to give suffrage to women but its action must also be approved by the senate, whose concurrence was believed by many to be a doubtful question.

The suffrage measure was adopted as an amendment to the electoral reform bill which was passed by vote of 311 to none. Deputy De Mon-sieur's suffrage amendment which permit women to run for seats in the chamber and to vote for chamber candidates, was adopted by a vote of 319 to 1.

The electoral reform bill, which must also be approved by the senate before final adoption, provides discontinuance of second elections where no majority was obtained in the first.
Under the bill the chamber will be elected on one balloting and the candidate obtaining the largest number of votes will be declared elected. In case of a tie the oldest candidate will get the seat.

Another section of the measure provides for compulsory voting of all who hold the franchise.

New Era Will Dawn in Germany With Hitler Reign, Kraus Says

BY BEN COOPER.

A new stage in the passion of the German people will begin with the coming to power of the Hitler or national-socialist party, a movement unquestionably directed towards a dictatorship, Dr. Herbert Kraus, of the University of Göttingen, Germany, Friday night informed an audience in the Gless Memorial auditorium in the closing session of the Emory institute of citizenship.

The Hitler movement, according to his program, is a revolutionary movement in so far as it wishes to alter fundamentally the conditions in Germany, Dr. Kraus said. The noted member of the World Institute of International Law, doctrine of jurisprudence and specialist on peace treaties, international law and diplomacy, was introduced by Julian Harris, news director of The Constitution. Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory, presided.

The fifth annual institute was the most successful yet held at Emory.
Dr. Theodore H. Jack, chairman of the institute, declared. Dr. Jack expressed appreciation of Emory for the attendance of the speakers and au-

'Forward Georgia' Dinner Shows Wide Diversity of State Products

Proving that Georgia's climate is favorable to the production of everything "under the sun," more than 200 leading representatives of farmers, chambers of commerce and city officials partook Friday of a "Georgia Products Dinner" at the Chamber of Commerce. Upper picture (left to right) shows R. E. Hammack, editor of the Cochran Journal; W. B. Welch, president, Pelham Chamber of Commerce, and Bob Lowe, of the Sloan Paper Company, Atlanta, inspecting a native-canned Georgia product. Lower picture (left to right) is a view of Judge R. C. Bell, of Cairo; Miss Margaret Crine, Cairo; and H. H. Wind, editor of the Cairo Messenger, discussing "collard greens." At the right are Mayor Key of Atlanta and Mayor "Tom" E. ## JOHNSON DEMANDS U. S. FEED JOBLESS

Relief Bill Vote Put Over Until Next Week as Debate Continues.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—
The power of Hiram Johnson's eloquence today was added to the demand in the senate for direct federal relief to the unemployed.

His voice booming through the crowded chamber, the California republican called attention to President Hoover's own appeal 12 years ago for relief for European children.

"For the love of God," he shouted,
"let us be for once in this administration American-minded and look after Americans."

His appeal concluded two weeks of debate on the La Follette-Costigan bill. Such a powerful demand for federal aid for the jobless has been generated that even so many republicans are predicting passage by the senate of a compromise measure.

An attempt by leaders to get an agreement for a vote Monday was blocked, but they were confident a decision would be obtained then and way. It was deferred today by the absence of a large number of senators for the week-end.

Leaders claimed enough votes to defeat the La Follette-Costigan bill to divide $750,000,000 between road construction and relief grants to the states.

A half dozen substitutes are hanging fire, however, to muddle the situation. The democratic plan to appropriate $750,000,000 but loan instead of give half of this to the states has the most support.

Johnson said President Hoover in recommending appropriation of funds for European children recognized that opposition would be stirred. He quoted Mr. Hoover as saying, "I refuse to apply those arguments to children."

"He was right then," the senator said. "I ask that those arguments not be applied to children now."

He was speaking of children beyond the sea. Why are they entitled to treatment from the United States government which is denied to children in this country?

Women and children, he said, are suffering from a "state of affairs such as I have never known."

Leaders Boom Roosevelt As New Yorker Enters Georgia Primary Lists

Empire State Executive Authorizes Entry of Name in Forthcoming Preferential Primary Elections.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt
Friday authorized Miss Stella Akin, secretary of the Georgia democratic executive committee, to place his name on the ballot as a candidate for the presidential nomination in the Georgia democratic primary March 23.

Governor Roosevelt had already filed for the North Dakota primary and entered the Georgia lists after Major John S. Cohen, democratic national committee for Georgia, had written him suggesting "your Georgia friends and neighbors feel that you cannot do less than this in state in answer to Major Cohen's letter."

"I do not need to assure you or the people of Georgia of my deep personal affection for what I consider any other state," I have spent so much time there during the last few years that I could not fail to hold many friends there."

GIANT LIQUOR RING BELIEVED BROKEN

104 Indictments Returned at New Orleans Against 97 Men, Firms.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—(AP)— An international ring with the bulky form of Al Capone in the background was revealed here today by the handing down of 104 indictments by a federal grand jury.

An army of federal agents after months of work have gathered evidence that, they say, shows that two years ago the Capone gang organized a gigantic liquor syndicate to bring Canadian liquor into the United States through the New Orleans area.

It began operations after the Canadian authorities had banned the shipment of liquor across the international boundary line.

Thousands of gallons of liquor, the agent said, have been smuggled through the Gulf coast marshes in the last two years. Under the plan, they said, Canadian distilleries shipped the liquor to Belize, British Honduras, where it was picked up by "mother ships" of the syndicate and reshipped to the Gulf coast. Small craft would meet the ships beyond the 12-mile limit and bring the liquor either into Mississippi streams or into Louisiana bayous.

Directors of the syndicate's operations made headquarters in New Orleans, and worked two gangs of bootleggers, loaders, truckers and runners, one in Louisiana and one in Mississippi. The syndicate owned their own boats and contacted the ships through outlaw radio stations, one of which

M'INTOSH SCORES TAX MONEY WASTE

Editor Tells "Georgia Day" Dinner Governmental Thrift Needed.

Cessation of what he termed the extravagant and needless waste of tax money is essential before Georgia can effectively begin a return to prosperity, it was asserted by Henry T.
McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald, at the banquet Friday night to approximately 200 agricultural, civic and business leaders celebrating "Georgia Day."

Mr. McIntosh's address and adoption by the statewide conference of a seven-point program of activity to bring every community of the state into concerted action to improve economic conditions were the features of a series of meetings held at the Chamber of Commerce under the designation of the "Forward Georgia" movement.

Two of the seven recommendations adopted epitomized the day's activities a "live-at-home" program and the finding of increased markets for Georgia products. Both of these recommendations were incorporated in a report of a special committee, and were first uttered by Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., who spoke to the visiting state representatives during a forenoon business session.

The North Dakota primary of March 15 indicated a conviction among his managers that his renomination is assured without the disagreeable necessity of battling for disputed states—particularly the states where the party lost.

Guns' Death Tattoo Beats Out Afresh When Truce Ends

Day's Developments In Sino-Jap Conflict

By the Associated Press.

Japan's big guns roared away in fog and mist this morning at Shanghai and Woosung, flinging new loads of explosives into the battered Chinese lines.

For a brief period Shanghai suffered the heaviest bombardment it has experienced since the conflict started there more than two weeks ago.

After the cannonading came six airplanes that circled over the ruins of Chapei, raining down clusters of bombs on the Chinese entrenchments.

The air raid lasted for about an hour and then the planes wheeled off to the north where the forts of Woosung were being torn once again by Japanese field pieces ashore and by Japanese warships in the Whangpoo and Yangtze.

Both Japan and China hastened their mobilization of men and war gear in preparation for decisive action—and representatives of the great powers on the scene and elsewhere intensified their peace efforts, racing against time.

China and Japan marshaled their implements of war for a titanic struggle for a titanic struggle as the representatives of the great powers on the scene and elsewhere intensified their peace efforts in a race against time.

The Chinese military command sounded the call to arms for all available man power and summoned four squadrons of planes from Canton to obstruct what was expected to be a desperate Japanese offensive.

FRANCE AND ITALY RENEW NAVY TALK

Geneva Conference Bears
First Fruit in Resumption of Negotiations.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 12.— (AP)—The world disarmament conference bore its first fruit today with the resumption of direct negotiations between the French and Italian delegations to settle their naval differences.

It was firmly believed that conferences now being held would lead to an extension of the London naval treaty in 1930 and provide a basis for further disarmament of all powers on the seas.

French Minister of War Andre Tar-dieu and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, have already met to discuss the subject and their conversations are being followed up by the French and Italian naval experts, Rene Massigli and Augusto Rosso.

The negotiations are being conducted on the basis of the abortive agreement among Italy, France and Great Britain on March 1, 1930. The principal point to be worked out is the replacement of ships becoming obsolete—a point which wrecked the 1930 treaty.

The French, who have a proportionately large number of ships that will soon become overaged, have maintained the right to replace them and the Italians, whose navy is relatively more modern, have contested this stand.

The conference is following the negotiations with interest inasmuch as the Franco-Italian naval dispute has been one of the most difficult problems in disarmament because they may lead to an agreement between the two powers to reduce their land and air forces as well.

Today was small nations day at the conference board, with the foreign ministers of Spain, Czechoslovakia and Denmark outlining their country's suggestions for limitation and reduction.
The Spanish delegate, Luis Zulueta, proposed abolition of military aviation and the internationalization of civil aviation and approved the proposal of the great powers to outlaw arms of an aggressive nature.

LEAGUE POSTPONES ACTION ON PROTEST

Chinese River Forts Reported in Good Condition To Meet Attack
Despite Battering.

BY JAMES P. HOWE.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)
SHANGHAI, Feb. 12.—(Saturday)
(AP)—The Chinese section of Shanghai was blasted and torn today by howitzer shells and air bombs, and at the conclusion of the bombardment the Japanese command announced they had succeeded in breaking up a threatening Chinese counter-attack before it got started.

Reports that promising peace negotiations were in progress were treated as effectively as the Chinese positions in Chapei. Nelson T. Johnson, United States minister to China, whose arrival here with the French and British ministers gave rise to optimistic rumors that a pacific settlement was in the making, said so far as he knew there were no serious peace proposals anywhere on the horizon.

The bombardment of Chapei, started by Japanese howitzers in the fog and mist at 8:05 a. m., and followed up by six big air bombers, succeeded in scattering menacing Chinese troop concentrations, the Japanese naval command said.

For a brief period all Shanghai, even to the business district, shook to the heaviest cannonading since the fighting started more than two weeks ago. Then, as the fog cleared away, the Japanese command could be seen over Chapei, where, for an hour or so, they searched out their objectives and, as they picked them out, dropped their loads of destruction and death.

Ministers Called.

The guns and the airplanes awakened Mr. Johnson and his diplomatic colleagues. Each grabbed a telephone and called to his consulate to find out what it was all about.

Mr. Johnson announced that he and the British and French envoys were in Shanghai to learn exact conditions here. The greatest difficulty, he said, would be encountered in effecting to arrive at a proposal satisfactory to both sides.

"It is a question of fact," he explained. "Neither side wants to lose face. Face is everything in the far east. If any individual or group were capable of formulating some scheme by which faces would be saved, it would be a great service to the world community, and perhaps eventually a way might be opened for talk designed to bring about a cessation of hostilities."

The American minister expected to see Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, today or tomorrow. Although not making any positive assertions, he apparently did not believe the Shanghai International Settlement to be in any immediate danger.

About 9:30 a. m., the bombers wheeled to the north toward the Woosung forts. Clouds of fog and smoke hung over the Whangpoo river and into the Chapei, for a time at least, in quiet.

Chinese Await Planes.

These Japanese airplanes had got into their work as the Chinese waited impatiently for four squadrons of planes coming up from Canton to assist new units of infantry that were being trained in the area in preparation for the impending Japanese rush on Woosung and Chapei.

Before the guns and air bombers got into action this morning there had been several hours of inactivity by both the Chinese and Japanese—an interval of rest after a flurry of firing which started at midnight.

A visit to the Japanese positions along the southern and eastern borders of Chapei this morning revealed that the troops were ready for any emergency.

So far as they were concerned, yesterday's truce of mercy was a thing of the past.

KENTUCKY PROBE ASKED OF SENATE

Writers Say "Reign of Terror" Has Abridged Constitutional Rights.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(P)—A congressional investigation into conditions in the Kentucky mining counties of Harlan and Bell was proposed today in the house as New York writers who had been driven from the counties described "a reign of terror" existent there.

Meanwhile, citizens in that area urged that if an inquiry is to be made, the first step should be in New York with its "reign of terror" existent there.

Representative Black, democrat, New York, introduced a resolution for the investigation of the two counties while the writers were telling their

King George Invited To Virginia Holiday
RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 12.—(P)—Senator R. O. Norris told the state senate today that King George V of England had been invited to deliver an address by radio to the general assembly of Virginia as a part of the celebration of the bicentennial anniversary of George Washington's birth, February 22.

Waldo Frank, of New York, an author and chairman of the writers' committee that was escorted from Bell and Harlan counties by a vigilance committee Wednesday night, charged he had been beaten about the head and driven from the state after trying to distribute food at Pineville, Ky.

Striking miners in the area, which has been torn by labor strife for more than a year, live in a condition of virtual lawlessness, Frank said, and with widespread suffering and poverty.

With other members of the writers' group, he appeared before Senators Costigan, democrat, Colorado; Cutting, republican, New Mexico; and Logan, democrat, Kentucky, whom they asked to hear their story. They presented affidavits describing their treatment in detail.

Frank, head bound in surgical dressing for a wound he asserted Kentuckians gave him, charged they accused him and Allen Taub, who also was injured, of fighting with each other when they were being escorted from the state.

Taub, attorney for the International Labor defense, gave a detailed account of his experiences in the two counties.

Liston M. Oak, New York journalist, told the senators the senate should investigate "a reign of terror" which has abridged all constitutional rights in the coal fields.

Asked by Senator Cutting "what authority" the inquiry could be made, he said "the force of public opinion" and existing conditions.

Sensor Logan expressed the opinion there was "lots of suffering in New York, where babies also are without milk" and asked Frank if he thought "conditions in Kentucky are any worse than in parts of Pennsylvania for example?"

Kentucky senator also questioned Taub, asking "what can the United States senate do? You're a lawyer. You're talking about a matter that took place in a sovereign state. What right has the United States senate to go into a county of that state?"

a deep affection for it and its people.

Donates to Foundation.
Governor Roosevelt also agreed for his friends to pay the $1,000 primary entrance fee but said he would donate $1,000 to the patients' fund of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation "for the special purpose of giving assistance to the children of Georgia who have infantile paralysis."

The New York governor was one of the founders of the Warm Springs foundation and has spent much time there undergoing treatment for infantile paralysis. He is widely known in Georgia.

Rules prescribed by the Georgia democratic executive committee require entrants in the presidential primary to enter their names on the official party ballot over their own signatures.

The entrance lists close at noon February 22. If only one name is entered the primary will be called off and the state convention in Atlanta April 6 will send all of Georgia's delegates to the national convention in Chicago.

Cohen's Letter.
Major Cohen's letter to Governor Roosevelt follows:

"Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, 'State Capital, Albany, N. Y.'"

"My dear Governor: I have the honor to apprise you that the subcommittee of the Georgia state democratic executive committee, acting under duly granted authority, has fixed March 22, next, as the date of the democratic presidential primary in this state, and also has prescribed rules and regulations therefor.

"Permit me to direct your attention particularly to that clause of the rules which requires an entrant in the Georgia presidential primary to authorize, over his own signature, the placing of his name upon the official party ballot. The obvious purpose of this provision is to insure that the primary shall represent the real expression of the popular will on real issues and responsible candidates.

"Since you have already authorized the use of your name in this capacity on the democratic ballot in the forthcoming primary in North Dakota, your friends and neighbors feel that you cannot do less than this in a state which is half yours by adoption and wholly yours in the esteem and affection of its people. They, therefore, confidently await your reply, and request the privilege of paying your entrance fee.

"The developments of these pre-convention months, and particularly those of recent date, have served to redouble the loyalty of your hosts of supporters in Georgia and to make still surer their belief that you will lead the democratic party in 1932 to a great victory and a great service.

"With the warmest of personal good wishes, I am,

"Faithfully yours,
"JOHN S. COHEN."

Roosevelt's Reply.
The following is Governor Roosevelt's reply in full:

"Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11, 1932.
"Hon. John S. Cohen,
"Democratic National Committee."

"Atlanta, Ga.
"My dear Major Cohen:

"I am indeed grateful to you for your letter of February 9, appraising me of the rules and regulations adopted for the Georgia presidential primary on March 22, next. I gratefully accept the suggestion of your Georgia friends and neighbors that I authorize the use of my name on the democratic ballot in this primary.

"I do not need to assure you of the people of Georgia of my deep personal affection for what I consider 'my other state.' I have spent so much time there during the last few years that I could not fail to hold a deep affection for it and its people. I am especially happy in the knowledge that this affectionate regard is reciprocated. I am deeply touched by the request of my friends, through you, that they have the privilege of paying my entrance fee in the forthcoming primary.

"I accept this generous offering, but at the same time, because I feel that this is, in a very proper sense, a personal obligation, I shall contribute $1,000 (the amount of the fee) to the patients' fund of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, for the special purpose of giving assistance to the children of Georgia. You know how very close to my heart is the treatment at Warm Springs for children who have had infantile paralysis.

"I am today writing Miss Stella Akin, secretary of the Georgia state democratic executive committee, formally entering my name in the forthcoming primaries.

"With my warm personal regards, and best wishes, I am,

"Sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Governor Roosevelt's formal entry was the letter he wrote Miss Akin. It follows:

"Albany, N. Y.,
"February 11, 1932.
"Miss Stella Akin, Secretary,
"Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee,
"Realty Building,
"Savannah, Ga.
"Dear Miss Akin:

"Pursuant to primary rules and regulations adopted by the state democratic executive committee of Georgia, governing the presidential primary election to be held March 22, 1932, I desire to have my name placed upon the official ballot as qualified candidate for the presidential nomination in the Georgia democratic primary election to be held March 22, 1932.

"I am informed that rule No. 9, adopted by the state democratic executive committee for the government of the presidential primary, reads as follows:

"Each candidate entering said presidential primary shall, on or before 12 o'clock noon, central standard time, February 22, 1932, pay to the secretary of this committee, at her office in the Realty building, in Savannah, Ga., an assessment of one thousand ($1,000) dollars, which payment shall be accompanied by a statement signed by the candidate, of his desire to have his name placed upon the official ballot. The entrance fee is intended to cover only the costs of printing and distributing ballots and not to cover the expense of holding the primaries in the counties."

"Very truly yours,

is largely in the hands of the insurgents.

Senator Johnson's refusal to go to North Dakota, on the other hand, greatly lessened the likelihood that he will run at all against Hoover. He left the door open to later action in other states, but his friends no longer had much hope of his candidacy.

Various other developments during the day partly clarified and partly clouded the situation in both parties:

In Harrisburg a Roosevelt-for-president league was organized by democratic leaders of 30 Pennsylvania counties. Similar leagues are to be launched soon in other states.

The republican state committees of Kentucky and Tennessee endorsed President Hoover for re-election. These are among the states counted by the Hoover leaders as safe without a delegate contest.

With 24 hours left for filing in North Dakota, the only republican entrants were former Senator Joseph E. France, of Maryland; Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania; and Jacob S. Coxey, of Ohio.

As the entry list was closing tonight in Illinois, France was the only contestant among the republicans and Senator James Hamilton Lewis among the democrats. These designations are not, however, binding on the delegates.

A complete slate of delegates for Alfred E. Smith, including the governor and both senators, was reported ready for filing in Massachusetts. The delegates in people were not yet decided whether to file them.

Representative Canfield, democrat, Indiana, issued a statement boosting John N. Tamm, for the democratic primary. Indiana is one of several states soon to be invaded by Garner enthusiasts.

Finally, a discussion over republican platform prospects turned up an indication of the question of prohibition would be left open to the convention met. Eastern modifications are trying to get a promise of concessions before they come out for Hoover, but there was no confirmation of reports they had succeeded.

The sudden stiffening of the Roosevelt campaign attracted first attention among all of these developments. Cummings is an old-timer in democratic councils. A decade ago he was national chairman. He held most of his conferences today in the office of another former chairman, Senator Hull, of Tennessee. Thus the Roosevelt boom took on an attribute heretofore largely lacking in the direction toward experienced leadership.

The Connecticut veteran disclaimed any title, denying he had "taken charge" of the Roosevelt forces. He said Cummings had been "driven" because the time had come for a aggressive campaign.

He was the central figure at a luncheon in the city hall, where the table was set for Senators Walsh and Wheeler, Montana; McKellar, Tennessee; Pittman, Nevada; Dill, Washington; Blair, Alabama; McNamara, Kansas; Bulow, South Dakota; Byrnes, South Carolina; and Bailey, North Carolina.

There was no formal announcement made, but it was evident a persistent senatorial co-operation for Roosevelt was beginning. Hull said he was confident the New Yorker couldn't be stopped. McKellar said Tennessee was overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

"I am gratified at the pronounced sentiment from the democratic side of the senate in favor of the nomination of Governor Roosevelt," said Walsh. "I believe that the unanimity of sentiment accurately reflects the views of the democracy of the nation."

Cummings remarked that he hadn't yet heard a dissenting note," and Hull said he hoped to have other senators meet Cummings tomorrow.

The Hoover and Johnson refusals to go into North Dakota were attended by no sound of trumpets. Passed with a decision before the lists close tomorrow night, the Hoover managers quietly let it be known the president's name would not appear, and Johnson informed Senator Frazier and Nye, who had asked him to file, that he could not accept.

It was indicated that some arrangement might be made by which a slate of uninstructed delegates, favorable to the administration, would be put on the North Dakota ballot. The details, however are to be left to the North Dakota regulars themselves.

Johnson's decision did not greatly surprise his friends. For months he has been the object of the "sink it" decision. He would like to run if he saw a chance of nomination, but he has no organization and no campaign fund—a serious handicap in these days of state primaries.

He has not definitely said "no," however. He made a senate speech today full of jobs at the administration, and he will make others, meantime keeping the regulars guessing as to his intentions.

Close to the Chapel battlefield machine gun fire was heard. From positions that had remained virtually unchanged since a few hours after the hostilities began, the Japanese and Chinese riflemen and machine gunners tried to pick off whatever member of the enemy forces raised his head above the sandbags.

Meanwhile, things were going on at Woosung. ## 'Use-Georgia-Products' Drive Offers Way To End Depression, Russell Tells Legion

Georgia products, both for nourishment and raiment, were given a big boost Friday night at the Georgia products dinner given by the Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion on the roof of the Ansley hotel.

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. Friday night told American Legionnaires that the use-Georgia-products movement launched by the Legion of the United States affords a better opportunity for the citizens of this state to take advantage of the opportunity to use Georgia products.

"We should hang our heads in shame," he added, "when we know that there is imported into this state annually 42,000,000 pounds of dry salt pork when no other section of the United States affords a better opportunity to grow goods.

The low price of cotton today, Governor Russell observed, "is due so much to under-consumption as to over-production."

For a supreme onslaught on an enemy who has held them at bay for two weeks.

The tolling of midnight was echoed by a renewal of hostilities on both fronts. Each side went into action at Chapel, virtually cleared of non-combatants as a result of a four-hour trench yesterday, with machine guns and trench mortars shooting rockets of fire into the night.

At the same time, Japanese warships and airplanes opened up on the village and forts of Woosung, 16 miles down the Whangpoo river. Destroyers and cruisers concentrated their weapons on the emplacements and pilots dropped bombs near them as they swooped low over the town.

Meeting to discuss peace, American Minister Nelson T. Johnson and the British and French ministers sat in the dining room of the luxurious Cathay hotel, situated in the heart of the settlement, and witnessed a grim entertainment. To get a better view they went to the tower of the 20-story building and used their binoculars.

Conflicting Claims.
Each camp accused the other of offering provocation as the conflict flared up once more and each claimed that his cannonading had claimed considerable victims. The Japanese battered away with their artillery and the Chinese replied with a sharp cross-fire from machine guns.

As the Nipponese aircraft wheeled and circled along the entire 16-mile front from the mouth of the river to the city, they used none of the 500-pound projectiles which were expected today and they were scrupulously careful to avoid crossing the settlement boundary, within which they bombed a Chinese cotton mill yesterday with great danger to American marines.

The surrounding area is rapidly approaching Chapel as a study in destruction.

The forts have come through considerably better. They have seldom suffered direct hits from the guns in the river and the morale of their men power has not been broken. Some of the cannon lay lopsided on the ground

The spokesman at naval headquarters said the cruisers and destroyers participating in the Woosung bombardment were having things just about as they pleased.

The ships moved back and forth off the forts, the spokesman said, dropping projectiles in them at will.

Meanwhile, fire pieces behind the Japanese lines along the western shore of Woosung creek poured explosives into the Chinese positions and machine gunners and riflemen along the creek did their part by keeping Chinese heads down.

The naval command announced that the howitzer shelling and the aerial attack on Chapel which started shortly after 8 a. m. had succeeded in scattering threatening concentrations of Chinese troops.

These troops were massed at points well within Chapel, the Japanese said, and they were accepted as evidence that the Chinese had determined to make a new attack. Bombs and shells put an end to the threat, the naval command declared.

More Troops Expected.
The Japanese spokesman hinted at events to come. Large bodies of troops were off Woosung, he said, and their landing is likely to occur within a few days, and then a Japanese push may be expected. The spokesman explained that the Japanese command considered the time "not yet ripe for a forward movement."

Reinforced by upwards of 20,000 soldiers, the Japanese naval command served warning with a tattoo of shells on the Woosung forts and on the Chapel ruins that they were girding

VAN PAASSEN HERE ON LECTURE TOUR OF UNITED STATES

Pierre Van Paassen, roving correspondent for a number of important American papers and the North American Newspaper Alliance, is home again in Atlanta. Just for a few days, but home, nevertheless. He is here to speak on Monday evening at Taft hall under the auspices of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, his subject being "Zigzagging Through Europe and Asia." The occasion will, beyond doubt, be one of rich and rare delight and wealthy information.

It is only a few years since Van Paassen was a regular member of The Constitution staff. Descendant of a distinguished Flemish family, Van Paassen came to Atlanta via the Belgian army—during the World War—Canada and other stopping places. His writing ability is remarkable and he quickly jumped to prominence in the newspaper world.

Possessing a flair for the interesting in the daily news, and a gift for uncovering the fascinating side of character in the people he met, it was inevitable that he should develop into a reporter, commentator and interviewer of international renown.

That he has fully lived up to that promise all who read his daily column on the editorial page of The Constitution, "The World's Window," know well.

While in Atlanta he will speak twice, appearing on Monday afternoon before the Council of Jewish Women at the Temple house on Peachtree road, when his topic will be "A Bird's-eye View of the Jewish World."

The lecture on Monday night, at Taft hall, will start at 8:30 and is open to the general public. It will undoubtedly be one of the outstanding platform events of the year in Atlanta.

Shelling in their efforts to check the advance.

The state department is watching the negotiations in Shanghai, as well as the Chinese efforts at Geneva, with much interest, but there are no indications that the United States and Great Britain will submit any new peace plans in the immediate future.

TOKYO WILL NOT MOVE DEBUTCH FROM WASHINGTON
TOKYO, Feb. 12.—(P)—Japanese Ambassador Katsuj Debutch will not be replaced or supplemented at Washington by a special envoy to marshal support for Japan's military activities in China.

The foreign office so stated today in discrediting reports that distinguished statesmen would be sent to the United States, Great Britain and France to enlist sympathy and understanding for the Japanese position.

Ambassador Debutch planned to return home last fall for a holiday, it was said, but decided to remain because of the conflict in Manchuria. No further action has been taken and it was assumed he would stay at his post until the Sino-Japanese question is finally settled.

(An appropriation of $4,000,000 yen (about $12,000,000) for military expenses in the Shanghai campaign was approved today by a committee of the privy council, which is expected to approve the appropriation tomorrow. The emperor later will give his sanction.)

1,800 CHINESE KILLED IN ADVANCE ON HARBIN
TOKYO, Feb. 12.—(P)—A total of 1,800 Chinese were killed and 2,000 were wounded during the advance of Japanese troops on the city of Harbin, which they occupied after fighting with the Chinese army of General Ting Chow, regimental reports from Manchuria indicated today.

"I am today writing Miss Stella Akin, secretary of the Georgia state democratic executive committee, formally entering my name in the forthcoming primaries.

"With my warm personal regards, and best wishes, I am,

"Sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Governor Roosevelt's formal entry was the letter he wrote Miss Akin. It follows:

"Albany, N. Y.,
"February 11, 1932.
"Miss Stella Akin, Secretary,
"Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee,
"Realty Building,
"Savannah, Ga.
"Dear Miss Akin:

"Pursuant to primary rules and regulations adopted by the state democratic executive committee of Georgia, governing the presidential primary election to be held March 22, 1932, I desire to have my name placed upon the official ballot as qualified candidate for the presidential nomination in the Georgia democratic primary election to be held March 22, 1932.

"I am informed that rule No. 9, adopted by the state democratic executive committee for the government of the presidential primary, reads as follows:

"Each candidate entering said presidential primary shall, on or before 12 o'clock noon, central standard time, February 22, 1932, pay to the secretary of this committee, at her office in the Realty building, in Savannah, Ga., an assessment of one thousand ($1,000) dollars, which payment shall be accompanied by a statement signed by the candidate, of his desire to have his name placed upon the official ballot. The entrance fee is intended to cover only the costs of printing and distributing ballots and not to cover the expense of holding the primaries in the counties."

"Very truly yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

BANK BILL CALLED PROSPERITY KEY

Congress Speeds Action on Measure To Expand Reserve Credit Basis.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(P)—The emergency credit expansion bill passed along in congress today with a promise from the administration that it will start business on an upward trend.

The senate banking committee put its approval on the legislation to open the federal reserve doors for new credit after an hour's consideration. It will be taken up by the senate Tuesday.

The house banking committee today approved the administration bill to broaden federal reserve discount powers and release additional credit.

Chairman Steagall announced the committee's vote had been unanimous, with one member reserving the right to oppose the bill on the floor.

Secretary Mills, of the treasury, told the house banking committee the bill theoretically "will release $10,000,000,000 of credit and start the upward movement we are all looking for."

The provision to release about $750,000,000 of "free gold" for new currency also developed today as a possible protective measure to strengthen the federal reserve system against threatened withdrawal of about $800,000,000 in gold "ear marked" for foreign countries, principally France.

Mr. Mills insisted, however, before the house banking committee that "we have sufficient gold to meet all demands that can be made."

In opening the reserve system to discounting of new paper not now eligible, the senate banking committee decided to limit this one-year privilege to banks with a capitalization of $500,000 or less.

Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, sponsor of the legislation, explained this was done to make the measure the beneficiary of the smaller institutions.

The bill contemplates also permanent revision of the law to permit member banks to obtain the aid of the federal reserve system after they have exhausted all eligible paper for discount.

To obtain assistance five banks must sign a promissory note secured by the now ineligible but "sound" securities.

Under the one-year temporary provision, individual banks are permitted to resort to this procedure. Senator Glass insisted there is $8,500,000,000 of eligible paper now in the hands of the banks which they have not discounted but agreed to press the bill.

The bill provides that direct obligations of the government may hereafter be put up as collateral for new note issues by federal reserve banks, thus putting into use the $750,000,000 gold not now needed as reserve for the outstanding currency.

Mr. Mills urged that the legislation be made permanent in its entirety. He blamed the deflation movement from last September onward to "the psychology of fear, more than anything else."

Supplementing the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation, Mills said the new legislation would "restore confidence and permit the credit machinery of the country to resume its normal flow."

New Kerchiefs Supply Right Word for Girls

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(P)—If you are too shy to say "yes" or loath to say "no" there are wispy kerchiefs of printed chiffon which will answer for you.

The words "yes" and "no" are printed on the same kerchief. So are such other frivolous and flirtatious invitations and commands as "stop," "go," "danger," "curves ahead." They are nice for young ladies who have a penchant for frequent changes of mind. Some have one line love lyrics in French—equally distracting!

PAROLE OFFICER SEEKS LOCAL HEADQUARTERS

Efforts to secure for Atlanta the southern regional probation office will be made today when Colonel Joel R. Moore, United States probation supervisor, confers with Richard A. Chappell, probation officer for northern district of Georgia, regarding the establishment of headquarters for a regional probation director. Colonel Moore arrived in Atlanta Friday night to inspect the district office here.

Heretofore the attorney-general's office in Washington has supervised the 53 probation offices in the nation, but plans are being made to divide the country into four regions, with a director in each. If the plan is carried out, Atlanta will in all probability secure the office.

The duties of the probation department are to supervise investigations of United States prisoners recommended for parole.

During today Colonel Moore will confer with the parole board here, with Judge E. Marvin Underwood and District Attorney Clint W. Hager. Mr. Chappell said that application would be made for two additional men in the northern district of Georgia.

JOSEPH L. DENNIS, 41, TAKEN BY DEATH HERE

Joseph Littleton Dennis, 41, of New York city, died early Friday morning at the residence of his mother, Mrs. J. L. Dennis Sr., at 340 Moreland avenue. Mr. Dennis, a native of Atlanta, was associated with his brother in the printing business in New York.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, with Dr. John Jenkins and the Rev. C. M. Liphart officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

A graduate of Boy's High school here and the University of Georgia, Mr. Dennis served during the war as an expert chemist, testing poisonous gases at a government station in Michigan. Following his army service, he went to New York to enter the printing business.

Suffering a nervous breakdown several months ago, he returned to Atlanta in January to reside with his mother.

In addition to his wife, the former Miss Margaret O'Hanlon, of New York, Mr. Dennis is survived by two small sons, Joseph Littleton Dennis III, and Peter Edward Dennis; his mother, two brothers, Walter N. Dennis and Robert N. Dennis, of New York, and a sister, Mrs. George Walker, of Atlanta.

CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM IS WARMLY DEFENDED

Miss Allie Mann Cites Low Cost of Education in Address Before City Club.

Defense of the Atlanta educational program and a request that it be maintained "on the same high and efficient standard that has been obtained" were developments Friday in the drive of teachers, school administration heads and parent-teacher organizations for supplementary funds for operation and maintenance this year.

Miss Allie Mann, president of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' Association, defended the Atlanta system at a meeting of the City Club, saying that the average cost per pupil in Atlanta is $68 as against $112 for the nation.

"I do not believe any of our teachers would refuse to accept the same cut given employees in other city departments," Miss Mann said, "if such a step were necessary, but we do object to a cut of 17 per cent, as proposed in the budget, which calls for an appropriation of $592,000 less than last year."

Approximately 500 persons attended a meeting at the Hoke Smith Junior high school Thursday night and concurred in adoption of a resolution calling for additional money to maintain the present standard.

Meetings are being planned in several other schools for the purpose of enlisting parents behind the campaign for additional funds. The finance sheet passed by council sets up a minimum of $2,550,000 for schools for the year.

Joe C. Little, tax assessor, Friday issued the following statement regarding a card carried Friday morning in The Constitution:

"Regarding Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson's statement in this morning's paper, would say that she has the wrong conception of the prescribed duties of the tax assessors and receivers of the city of Atlanta. It is not within their province to assess properties for taxable purposes on a basis that meets the varying opinions of every one. This department operates under regulations fixed by law.

"If a different basis of valuations for taxable purposes is desired, and a different rate of taxation should be applied to these valuations, then the law and regulations should be changed. This can be done only by the law making authorities."

70-Degree Weather To Continue Today

More 70-degree weather is in prospect for Atlanta today, according to C. F. von Herrmann, of the local United States weather bureau. Today's skies will be clear and the mercury will range between 58 and 71 degrees, or higher.

About 4 o'clock Friday morning a heavy rain struck Atlanta, accompanied by an electrical display that assumed the aspect of a summer thunderstorm. However, the rain is over for a few days at least, he said. Temperatures Friday ranged between 55 and 71 degrees.

7 COMMITTEES NAMED ON TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Appointment of seven committees by Councilman Ellis B. Barrett, chairman, to delay into Atlanta's perplexing traffic problem, and decision to institute a campaign to educate the public in safety methods and courteous driving were features of the meeting of Mayor James L. Key's traffic commission Friday.

The commission also voted to replace present metal and rubber stop signs in the middle of the streets with curbstone reflector type signs. Membership of the various committees follows:

Legislative—P. C. Bowles, chairman; Aldermen Alvin L. Richards, Frank K. Shaw, E. Smythe Gambrell.

Publicity—Frank K. Shaw, chairman; E. K. Large, Robert E. Lee, J. M. Harrison, Educational Committee—W. H. Gates, chairman; J. M. Harrison, E. E. Hodgson, Law Enforcement—Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, chairman; Aldermen Alvin L. Richards, Charles A. Ross.

CITY WORKERS' BILL DEFERRED BY GROCERS

Mayor Key has not suggested to the retail grocers of Atlanta that they cut off the credit of city employees, according to S. D. Mullinaux, secretary of the Atlanta Retail Grocers' Association, who asked The Constitution Friday night to deny this rumor.

"On the contrary, our members will continue to serve their customers who are employees as they have in the past," Mr. Mullinaux said. "They intend to see them through the citywide panic created by the city's failure to balance its budget."

ATLANTA, GA., FEB. 13, 1932.

WHY USE LIMESTONE?

It is difficult to understand the insistence of the treasury department that Indiana limestone be used in the construction of the new Atlanta postoffice when it can be built of either Georgia marble or granite and still be within the amount appropriated by congress.

The federal government is being urged to spend hundreds of millions of dollars on various projects in order that men may be put to work. The use of either marble or granite would furnish employment for hundreds of men in Georgia for a period of at least a year. The government would be put in an inconsistent attitude should the national construction campaign be put under way and these Georgia workers kept in idleness merely to save a few thousand dollars through the use of cheap materials in the construction of the Atlanta postoffice.

The use of Indiana limestone for the building would at best be false economy. The limestone walls of the state capitol are too weak to support additions and are so porous that they can be cleaned only with danger to interior decorations.

Atlanta is growing so rapidly as a small order center that additional space to that provided by the new building, ample though it is at this time, will be required. If one of the high-class Georgia materials is used in its construction it will be possible to add stories to meet the greater requirements, while the use of limestone would in all probability make necessary the purchase of additional property for the construction of an annex.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has communicated with all local civic organizations and the heads of our leading business concerns, urging that they communicate direct with the treasury department, stressing the advantages of the use of Georgia material in the new postoffice.

The use of Georgia marble or granite in the new postoffice will mean not only a better and more beautiful building, but it will put into circulation here a large sum of money which would go elsewhere if limestone is used.

The business interests of Atlanta will be the chief gainers from the use of Georgia materials and they should not fail to lend their full co-operation to the efforts being made by the Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia delegation in congress.

THE VAN PAASSEN LECTURE.

The lecture to be given at Taft Hall Monday evening by Pierre Van Paassen, under the auspices of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, promises to be an occasion of unique interest.

As a member of the news and editorial staffs of The Constitution, Mr. Van Paassen grew to know and love Atlanta and its people, although there are few men who are more literally citizens of the world than he.

Bearing the title of jonkheer—a rank similar to the English baron—he is the descendant of a long line of Flemish noblemen noted for their wanderlust, his family having been represented in each of the crusades, and have sailed forth, generation by generation, to the four corners of the earth.

The re-election of the Georgia sheriff under conviction for conspiracy to violate the dry laws carries a moral it is unnecessary to point out.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW
BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Unseen Assassins.
Sir Norman Angell, the great economist, who was recently in this country, has written a book in which he outlines his theory of the cause of modern war. He says: The greatest evils which devastate our civilization and at times nearly destroy it, are not due in the main either to the wickedness or the evil intentions of men; nor the lack of intentions of men; nor the lack of knowledge in the sense that we lack knowledge to release atomic energy, or to communicate with Mars or cure cancer.

"Those evils are due to the failure to our social relationships knowledge which is of practical universal possession, often self-evident in the facts of daily life and experience and to derive from that already available knowledge the relevant social truth. We disregard knowledge which we possess, though we are unaware of that disregard. We do not desire to create social or economic evils, to impose injustice and bring about war, but we apply policies in which those results are inherent because we fail to see the implications of those policies.

"Those unperceived implications are the unseen assassins of our peace and welfare. Yet they would be quite evident to quiet ordinary eyesight if it had not been artificially distorted or rendered defective from entirely preventable causes."

Bewildering Warfare.

Some aspects of the present Sino-Japanese embroglio are of such paradoxical nature as to be mystifying to the average western mind.

Although a condition of war actually exists, in which artillery, infantry, airplane and naval fleets are taking part, both China and Japan are studiously avoiding a declaration of war.

The provocation and the precipitation of the conflict are still somewhat obscure. The war office seems to have started the thing without consulting the foreign department of the Japanese government.

While a land and sea engagement was at its height a detachment of American cruisers steamed into the thick of the fight. War for the moment is thrust aside and the amenities come into play. Japanese sailors leave their guns, stand at attention, the Stars and Stripes are raised, and a Japanese band plays the Star-Spangled Banner. Similarly American sailors stand at attention, the Japanese flag is raised, and an American band plays the Japanese anthem. Gilbert and Sullivan couldn't have staged a better scene.

A Japanese admiral admits that his bombardment of Shanghai is pretty tough, and suggests milder measures. "Perhaps we shall use smaller shells," he suggests. His guns annihilate a neutral building. This is explained too. Chinese boys were playing with firecrackers about the building. Japanese sailors saw the smoke, thought they were being attacked, and cut loose with their guns. And a few days ago Chinese cavalry attacked a Japanese artillery position.

Georgia Heroes Of the World War

(All Rights Reserved.)

HARRY P. SIMPSON (Army Serial No. 1350407), sergeant, Battery B, 76th field artillery, Third division, American Expeditionary Force, awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action with the enemy near Le Chateau, France, July 28, 1918. After his commanding officer and 32 members of his battery had been wounded by a bomb from an enemy plane, Sergeant Simpson, himself wounded, assisted in the evacuation of the wounded, after which he remained until his place was placed in a new position before he retired for treatment.

Residence at enlistment, Covington, Georgia.

General Chang, leader of the Chinese air forces, is an American soldier of fortune, and probably knows little about the origin of the fighting and cares less.

During the fighting in Manchuria there was a merry-go-round, with the Japanese troops, Chinese regulars and insurgents and bandit hordes battling each other for supremacy.

However, the explanation of the failure of either Japan or China to issue a formal declaration of war is simple.

Article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations requires that the signatories of the League declare a boycott against any other member that goes to war. Both China and Japan are signatories. Both fear a worldwide boycott more than they do anything else. So with oriental astuteness they proceed to engage in a war, but carefully refrain from saying anything that would bring upon them an application of Article XVI.

The opera bouffe performance at Shanghai is a striking illustration of the inherent courtesy of the Japanese, and of the desire of that nation to retain the good will of the United States. The salute to the American fleet was a gesture so in line with Japanese nature as to make it impossible of misunderstanding.

Undoubtedly many features of the present controversy are strange to those accustomed to the more direct methods employed by western nations in their relations with each other, but behind most of these odd moves are generally to be found sound reasons. The explanation is that the oriental mind has not yet been convinced of the advantages of the direct approach.

"Barber John," of Chicago's Halstead street, fell back on legal technicalities to avoid being taken back to England to answer charges that he staged a $7,000,000 stock swindle—and, like so many of his ilk, is now free to enjoy his alleged ill-gotten cash.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter
BY ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

Your letter isn't prompted by the fact that you live in a small town. Human nature is changed very little by population statistics, and a large community is merely a collection of small ones.

In all communities of which I have knowledge, the people are divided into two classes—those who talk about things and those who talk about people.

Of course the classes aren't wholly distinct. Those who talk about things—about politics, books, current events, music, law—these may at times discuss their friends and their servants; but the other class, composed of those who talk about people, is incapable of talking or listening unless the topic of conversation is a neighbor.

You are now forming the social habits that will stay with you through life. The next five years will determine which class is yours.

Environment will decide the matter for you if you make no effort to do anything for yourself. You will develop the habit of making conversation as your daily companions do.

Don't fool yourself by assuming that you can spend your youth in discussing your neighbors and then blossom out overnight and become a charming conversationalist capable of discussing anything under the sun.

Habit isn't formed that way. Your future way of life won't be decided upon next year or the next. You are cutting the pattern now. Do you wish to be a common scold? That is the ultimate fate of every woman who talks about nothing but people. You can't make conversation about your neighbors' virtues and vices. Ordinary things aren't interesting. If you make it a practice to talk about people, you will talk about their faults and their sins, their mistakes and their failures. And after a few years of that your mind will travel in a rut and you won't be able to open your mouth without saying something uncomplimentary about somebody.

You can't change after the habit jells. Once you become a confirmed neighbor discussor, you will be happy only among others of your kind. When chance places you in a group that talks of other things, you will be as dumb as an oyster.

Talk of many things, Honey. Otherwise you'll be tongue-tied when you meet a stranger who doesn't know the Joneses.

Love,
DAD.

THE DOGS HAVE IT FRESH
DAILY.
A Saskatchewan clergyman takes the pulpit today, brethren, to preach a little sermon on good health and economy. I shall just sit by, smiling amiably.

"Dear Doctor:

"Permit me first of all to express appreciation of your Health Talks in our paper, and next to refer to your commendation of the use of goat's milk for children.

"We have a daughter of 5 summers, and as a baby she evidently was lacking in bone building qualities. As soon as I realized this I purchased a good Swiss Toggenburg milk goat with excellent results. I now purchased another, and now have a nice little herd of milkers, giving from 2 to 3 gallons a day each.

"I am interesting myself just now in a boy aged 3 years who cannot walk yet. . . . for believing that the milk of a goat is a good tonic for building properties. It is the opinion that the little fellow can be helped in this way.

"I might add that our little girl drinks goat's milk and we have an ample supply for our own domestic use. I arrange for my dogs to freshen so that a constant supply is assured.

"All my dogs are well bred and I have a pure-bred registered male. Again thanking you for your interesting articles on health, I beg to remain,

And I thank you, sir. Here's your milk hat and your cane.

Now that the minister has signed off, friends, let us hasten to correct his misapprehension. There is no real reason for a woman to assume that goat's milk has any "bone building" properties not present in cow's milk, though it is certainly as good as the best cow's milk in this and other respects.

Note that this amateur gets from two to four quarts of milk a day from each milker.

The reconciliation of reason in economy is much better than his odd notions about nutrition. He is providing his own family and other families with the very best milk they can get, especially for children. But it will not build bone or other tissue more effectively than will pure fresh cow's milk.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON
BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 12.—Mae Robson will play the part of the mother in "Stranger Interlude." This picture, which is now being shown at O'Neill drama, which is the big departure of the motion picture into this spring.

The mother's role in the picture is far more meaty than the original role in the play, which had no significance beyond mention of her son and the strong influence she was in his life.

When Edgar Wallace's friends gathered to pay a sad farewell to the author's body at his departure on the Santa Fe to the wedding to Gene Markey will follow shortly, being scheduled for spring. Gene Markey is one of the most popular members of the motion picture industry, and his departure will be a great loss to the industry.

There was a short service read by the Rev. G. H. Phillips, of the Hollywood Methodist church; then the little cortege began its long journey back to England. Robert Curtis, Wallace's secretary, and Robert Downes, an outler, accompanied the body home.

Ramon Novarro's next role is quite the opposite of the one he has just completed in "Mata Hari." This time, in "Huddle," he plays the part of a pranksome college boy who is typical of modern youth.

Charles "Chic" Sale has joined the ranks of the influenza victims who are threatened with pneumonia. I have a report that he is not taking it all. But Old Devil Sam is out again after a good two weeks of cloudbursts and the cinema colony is looking itself once again.

Movielites are doing well in vaudeville. Lilyan Tashman and Bing Crosby are making a big hit.

Abandonment of Old Moralities Deplored by Durant in Lecture

"The American Crisis" was brought about spiritually through our abandonment of the old moralities, and the loss of our certain moral standards, and bad, and economically because we are producing more than we have the power to purchase," according to Dr. William Durant, the philosopher and lecturer, who addressed a large audience in the auditorium at Agnes Scott college Friday night.

When a country produces more than it can consume, a condition brought about through the increase of inventions and other commercial efficiency, a panic or depression follows which lasts until prices decline to the point where people may buy again. Countries in their effort to find purchasers for this over-production go out into foreign fields, and here war breaks out.

Japan, he said, was an agricultural country until Admiral Perry gave it a glimpse of western materialism. Factories and production followed until Japan, in 1905, made the first thrust at western commercial rivalry when she fought Russia. Now she has the loss of our certain moral standards, and bad, and economically because we are producing more than we have the power to purchase," according to Dr. William Durant, the philosopher and lecturer, who addressed a large audience in the auditorium at Agnes Scott college Friday night.

posals, by the so-called dictatorship paragraph of article 48 of the constitution. Dictatorship paragraph is very unfortunate in form, language and content. The constitution does not provide for a dictatorship, nor is Germany under this form of government at present.

"Germany," said Dr. Pergler, "already is almost completely governed under a paragraph of the constitution stretched beyond its original meaning and its original intent."

Dr. Kraus, tracing the growth of the Hitler party, said that it aims for a dictatorship in the most decided sense of the word. "rather like the fascist pattern, except, perhaps, more radical than Italian fascism."

Approaching the subject from two angles, the growing Hitler movement, and the meaning of the fact that Germany is being ruled today without any assistance from the Reichstag, Dr. Kraus said that these two movements, opposite in purpose, have both resulted from the same cause—the deplorable condition of the German people and governmental operations under the Reichstag.

He spoke of the situation in Germany as a "dictatorship struggle" between brothers—between two inimical groups in the German people, which arise from the same facts and support quite different aims.

Actions of Chancellor Bruening and President Hindenburg have been accompanied by painstaking conferences and the work of the Reichstag committees and there is another check on individual powers in the courts. Dr. Kraus said. Stressing the power of the personality of Hitler, Dr. Kraus observed that it is this "valuation of personality" which is the essential difference between national-socialism and Marxism.

Another difference between the Hitler movement and the entire pro-Jews and the entire pro-Marxism of the national-socialists is permeated by this hatred of the Jewish race.

"One sometimes has the impression that a state is here trying to form within a state," he said, describing the Hitler movement as the reaction to conditions which continually grow more hopeless in Germany.

Dr. Pergler, addressing the institute Friday morning at the university auditorium, expressed optimism for the future of democracy in Europe, basing his faith on rising public sentiment. "Many of us believed sincerely that the 'World War' was fought to make the world safe for democracy," he said. "If we glance today at the present state of Europe, we see that its major portion is studied by dictatorships, open and disguised. We in Czechoslovakia have won national independence, but not political liberty. Since the end of the war the republic Czechoslovakia has been and is in the grip of an oligarchy of executive committees. My own people have been under the sway of a legend as to who liberated them."

Dr. Pergler, in charging "sordid intrigue" in the nomination of candidates in Czechoslovakia, said that "certain city bosses of the United States, did they understand this scheme for political purification, would be green with envy." Dr. Pergler criticized government censorship which, he said, "makes the people sign for some such tribunal as the United States supreme court that we could appeal to for the protection of our constitutional rights. Opposition to existing conditions has caused Prime Minister Urdzal recently to threaten an open dictatorship 'instead of the present disguised dictatorship.'"

Dr. Pergler conducted a round-table on the United States constitution and the constitutions of Europe, and asserted that the provision of the American constitution for courts to check the statutes is the most important contribution of the American people to political science.

BUFOF BOY, 9, INJURED BY AUTO; BROUGHT HERE

Dewey Martin, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Martin, of Buford, was brought to Georgia Baptist hospital late Friday night in a serious condition as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home.

The boy was believed to have received a fractured skull and internal injuries and had suffered greatly from loss of blood. He was crossing the highway in front of his home when a car driven by John Bailey, also of Buford, struck him. No arrest was made.

'Greatest Since Washington,' Hoover Says, Lauding Lincoln

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Naming Abraham Lincoln as the greatest American since Washington is a preserve of the nation's solidarity in its period of greatest stress—President Hoover tonight laid in a national tribute to the great Civil War president.

He spoke from the Lincoln study in the White House, the room in which Lincoln fought his part of the north-south conflict. Contrasting it with the present "fight upon a hundred fronts" against less tangible economic forces, the president called for wartime unity and predicted another national triumph.

While the chief executive was broadcasting his address to the Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club in New York, other administration leaders appeared in person before a score of similar gatherings throughout the country.

Earlier, words in praise of Lincoln had rung through the senate and the house. Ceremonies were held also, at the huge marble-pillared monument to his memory here.

Tribute to the ideals of the republic was paid by Mr. Hoover as part of his eulogy of Lincoln. He said its "traditions and tenets are becoming interested in sporting question," he added.

Stresemann's Passing a Blow.

The passing of Stresemann was a great blow to the foreign relations of Germany. Dr. Kraus said. "The world had contented itself with the hope of coming back to power in Germany, and the monarchy question is not now before us," he said. "Cancellation of debts? You know the attitude of France on that. Cancellation of debts would save the Bruening administration, but a big loan from America would even more tend to save him."

Europe can never depend upon having permanent peace until there is a reconciliation between Germany and France, because there has been enemy between the two nations for more than 1,000 years arising from the battle over the Rhine.

Illustrative of business conditions in Germany, Dr. Kraus cited the following data in sales from 1930 to 1931: Tobacco, 27.2 per cent; cigars, 18.5 per cent; beer, 15.5 per cent; tea, 12 per cent, and beer, 14.3 per cent. "The Germans do not smoke very much any more—they cannot afford it," he said. "The suicide rate and the death rate have risen. The government is spending 3,000,000,000 marks each year for debts. In spite of the hopelessness of the situation, the German people are just as enthusiastic as ever. The patience of Germany is amazing."

Mrs. Harris Speaks.

Julia Collins Harris, who recently spent several months in Germany, gave an intimate picture of life in Germany today, although she explained that the country is not as happy as it used to be. She said that the day to day and week to week Mrs. Harris complimented the Germans as a people who gave them a "friendly" and "pleasant" surprise.

She said that the Germans are just as enthusiastic as ever. The patience of Germany is amazing."

Contests for the departmental jobs at the postoffice continued to overshadow the battle for two posts on the Fulton county commission in which George F. Longino Jr., George B. L. Johnson, and W. A. Jones, Jr., Lynn, W. A. Jones, Jr., A. Ragdale and E. L. Almond are qualified.

Joe King, representing Cal Bates, one of the candidates for the post of sheriff's post, hurled the charge that Daniel is largely responsible for the bad fiscal condition of the city government.

"Mr. Daniel has failed to do his duty in collections of those processes which have come to him and that is largely responsible for the lack of funds with which to meet city payroll," King said.

When Daniel took the floor he said: "I collected $1,212,307 of the $1,240,000 turned over to me last year. The finance committee is not running the marshal's office. I refused to do what they told me to do. I refused to do what they wanted me to force to do."

A mass meeting will be held at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon at the intersection of the campaign of Sheriff James I. Lowry, seeking re-election. The rally will be held at the courthouse at Atlanta, Ga., at 3.30 p. m. on Friday night for the $700,000 bond issue for Fulton county schools to be voted on at the same time of the primary.

Sheriff Lowry's representatives on Friday night cited his record of service, "during which Mr. Lowry has handled 180,000 prisoners, had 15 escapes, and 13 receipts for the same," and H. M. Patton, the two other aspirants, also pleaded for votes at Friday night's meetings.

Walton Simmons, clerk, and B. C. "Tut" Broyles, his opponent for re-election; W. S. Richardson, tax collector, and A. C. Minihinnett, his opponent, will also speak.

Beulah Donehoo Manston and R. H. Conway, were among others who spoke.

POOLE AND GAINES DEEM KILLING

na Patterson, of Atlanta, Miss Patterson was one of five persons in the car of E. D. Rivers Jr., of Atlanta, who collided with a Lincoln touring car driven by Poole and occupied by E. D. Gaines, also an Atlanta policeman, on the morning of January 10, 1931. Poole also is under indictment for murder in connection with the death of Joe Pafford, who likewise was injured fatally in the crash. Gaines, likewise, is under a murder indictment in connection with both deaths.

Approaches Argumentative Stage.
The trial headed toward the argumentative stage after Poole made his statement, when the prosecution began its stream of rebuttal testimony tending to refute the statement of the defendant and Gaines and others who appeared in behalf of the Atlanta.

Solicitor-General Morgan and his associate, Senator Rivers, had more than a score of witnesses ready to take the stand, including Miss Cannon, who was brought here from Valdosta in an ambulance and on a stretcher.

It also was brought out in the rebuttal testimony that Detective Sam Smith and Detective F. C. (Red) Foster, of the Atlanta police department, had interviewed one of the two soldiers given a "lift" by Poole and Gaines at the soldier's home at Del Rio, Fla.

Surrounded by a physician and a nurse, Miss Cannon was laid before the jury box, from where she testified that she had seen a state's witness had taken a drink of liquor on the day of the fatal accident. She remained in the courtroom only a few minutes and then was little or no cross-examination.

Rebuttal Witnesses.
The state's rebuttal witnesses included J. W. Cowart, of Valdosta, who had appeared as a state's witness in the presentation of his direct testimony; Harry Ullman, Valdosta undertaker; Dr. W. H. Branch, of Hahira, the second brother of James A. Branch, Atlanta lawyer partner of William Schley Howard, to appear against Mr. Howard's side in this case; Mrs. F. W. Austin, wife of an Adel chiropractor; S. A. Johnson Jr., of Adel; Dr. C. J. Adkins, of Adel; L. E. Jones, Cook county farmer; Rev. A. W. Quillian, Methodist pastor, Sheriff Virgil Rooks and Private Louis B. Gaylord, of Fort Benning, one of the hitch-hikers who revealed that he was interviewed in Florida by Sturdivant.

Testify for State.
All of these witnesses said they saw Poole and Gaines, or Rivers and his party, and with the exception of Dr. Branch, who testified that he did not believe Poole had been drinking, the minister said that he called at the hospital the Sunday night Poole was there and inquired into the extent of his injuries and that Mrs. Adkins told him Poole was "too drunk to tell."

Did Not Know Status.
Private Gaylord, on cross-examination, said he did not know whether Lieutenant Smith and Foster were representing Cook county or whether they were representing the state.

In his testimony Sheriff Rooks brought out that when he took Poole and Gaines to Valdosta after Poole had been removed from the Adel hospital, he asked Poole if he wanted to go to the hospital at Valdosta, and that the patrolman replied that he wanted to go to a hotel. Sheriff Rooks said that when Poole told him of his desire to stay at a hotel, he decided to take him to the jail instead of to a hospital, where he planned to keep him under guard.

Poole's Statement.
Poole took the stand at 3:20 o'clock and remained before the jury 20 minutes. His statement follows in full:

"My name is A. Douglas Poole. I am employed by the city of Atlanta as a policeman. I have been on the force six years.

"I know Mr. Emmett Lee quite well. We have corresponded for many years. Being a city policeman I am allowed 20 days' vacation each year with pay. We may take it as we see fit and with the consent of the chief of police. I took my vacation from January 2 to December 20.

"My rank is a patrolman, my partner is the same and we take orders from our headquarters. On the morning of January 10, 1931, I was on duty from midnight until 8 in the morning. I talked with my captain about the first of the year about taking two or three days' vacation on a flying trip, and he said he would see me later about it. I wrote Mr. Lee we were coming before the first of February, writing him to be ready for our arrival.

"On the night of Saturday, January 9, I went to see a friend of mine and asked him if we could rent a car from him to make the trip. He said he thought we could, to come around the next evening and he'd see what he could do. I had gone to school with this man. Being around the next evening and he told me that there were two cars, either of which he could let me have. He said he had a sedan and a Lincoln and that the sedan's tires were not so good but the tires on the Lincoln were in good shape. He told me I could take whichever one I wanted.

"I figured it would be much better to have the open car with good tires than the closed car with poor tires, because it would be worse to have to sit in the cold and fix the tires. So I took the Lincoln.

"I went to Mr. Gaines' room on the Saturday evening and sat around the trip to Jacksonville and the trip while he was dressing and shaving. When he got ready we went to a luncheon across from his apartment and had a sandwich and went out to the home of Miss Gauding, to whom I am engaged to marry this month. She lived with her sister at Fourth and Piedmont avenue.

"We stayed at Miss Gauding's home until about 11 o'clock, when we went

Leading Figures in Friday Session of Poole Trial

Leading personalities in Friday's sessions of the murder trial of A. Douglas Poole, in Adel. Miss Ethel Henderson (left), Valdosta nurse, who presented one of the high spots of the defense when she testified that Miss Winona Patterson, before she died, said E. D. Rivers and the others in the smaller car were drinking; Hoyt D. Gaines (center), also under indictment, who testified for the defense that he and Poole were not drinking, and Judge W. R. Smith, who is presiding at the trial. Staff photos by Kenneth Rogers.

back to Gaines' room, where we changed clothes for work. We went to police headquarters and parked the Lincoln in a lot and went on duty.

"When we finished work in the morning we went back to Gaines' apartment and changed to our civilian clothes again. Then we went to a filling station and bought a quantity of anti-freeze mixture and tightened the brake on our car. From there we drove out South Boulevard to Gaines' sister's home, where we stopped a minute or two while he got a pair of gloves. Then we headed southward.

Stopped for Gasoline.
"When we got near Wesleyan College just north of Macon, we stopped for some more gasoline. We did not stop again until we were some distance south of Macon. I have been through the state many times going to and from Florida. I do not know the names of all of the cities in the state, but I know the names of the cities where we stopped. When we picked up the two soldiers, I did not want to pick them up, but Gaines did and we stopped the car.

"After they got in Gaines got to talking to them. At first I thought they were school boys but when they got in the car I heard them tell Gaines that they were from Fort Benning and Gaines told them they were soldiers of the regular army.

"I did not know what they were doing on the highway and it seemed funny to me that they were out hitch-hiking. I did not know they were deserting the service. I determined then that we could not take a chance on them.

Got Rid of Soldiers.
"So when we pulled into the filling station I told Gaines to go around in back as I wanted to have a talk with him. When we got around to the rear I explained to him about feeling that the soldiers might be deserters and that we ought to get rid of them. He agreed but it was embarrassing to tell them to get out. Anyway when we reached the town with the signal lights and stopped Gaines reached back and opened the door and the two men got out.

"They left the car without saying a word to me and as far as I know not a word passed between them and Gaines.

The next stop was when we ran off the pavement. I was driving along when we encountered a heavy truck. I think it might have been an orange truck. I do not know. Anyway the driver was taking the center of the road and I had to go over to the extreme right to let him pass. As I did the car got off the pavement and into the ditch. I was on the side of the road. The rear wheel began to spin and I knew the more it spun the harder it would be for me to get out. I was taking the car to Gaines got out and with the assistance of one or two fellows who came along we got the car out again. Then we went on southward.

"We were driving on past the town I was driving along at a fair rate of speed when suddenly I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us.

"I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us. I saw the Chevrolet speeding into us.

to go to my room to prepare for duty on the morning watch. Mr. Poole had left his uniform at my place and we planned to change clothes there and in the morning and change to our civilian clothes again for the trip to Jacksonville.

Started for Jacksonville.
"We made the return trip to my room in the Lincoln and from the room went to the police station where we put it in a parking lot, got into our police radio car and for the next eight hours were on duty.

"About 2 o'clock Mr. Poole sent a telegram to a friend, Officer Lee, at Jacksonville, telling him that we were leaving as soon as we got off of duty and would see him that night at the Seminole hotel.

"After we finished our work we again went back to our room where we changed to our civilian clothes and started on our trip.

"We drove to a filling station on Forrest avenue and got some gasoline and then headed out South Boulevard, planning to stop at the home of my sister, who lives beyond Lakewood Heights, to get a pair of gloves as the morning was bitterly cold.

"We stopped at the sister's house, got a pair of gloves, got in the car and headed southward. We did not make another stop until we got within two or three miles of Macon, when we pulled into a filling station to replenish our gasoline supply.

Picked Up Soldiers.
"Then we drove on southward at steadily but not fast speed and went through several towns, at the outskirts of one being hailed down by two soldier boys. I cautioned Doug against picking them up, but he said he'd anyhow. After they got into the car we found out they were regular army men from Fort Benning but we continued to carry them. The statement of one of them that we offered them liquor and that we took a drink while they were in the car is untrue. We did not take any liquor in the car. We did not take a drink either on the trip or prior to leaving Atlanta.

"A little way farther down the road we stopped to get some more gasoline and Mr. Poole and I got out of the car and went around the filling station where we had a talk with him in the rear. In our talk we said that we didn't know anything about these soldiers and for all that we knew we might be helping two men to desert the service. We decided to get rid of them but we did not know how to do so. We did not want to embarrass them, but we were determined that we could not carry them much farther.

Soldiers Leave Car.
"Well, a little while later we came to a town that had signal lights on the main crossing and when we reached the first it was red. As we pulled up and stopped and waited for the signal to go on I reached back and opened the rear door and the two soldiers who had been sitting on the back seat got out without saying a word. I saw them go on the highway as they left. When we reached the next signal light it was green and we went right on through. We were out of town in a few minutes.

"After we left that town I nudged down in the front seat and dozed off to sleep. The next thing I knew the right side of the car was being hit by the signal light in the ditch. I got out and some three or four fellows who came up helped me while Mr. Poole drove and we got out of the ditch.

"After we got started again I dozed off to sleep once more. The next thing I knew I was being hit by the signal light in the ditch. I got out and some three or four fellows who came up helped me while Mr. Poole drove and we got out of the ditch.

and she lives with her sister in an apartment at Fourth street and Piedmont avenue," the witness replied.

"What is the sister's name?" the assistant prosecutor asked.

"I do not know," Gaines said. "Were there other girls at the party?" was the next question.

"There were a number of girls at the apartment," a little child, Gaines told the jury.

"Does the beat you and Poole cover in Atlanta cover the Tenth Street garage?"

"It does not."

"Did you ever work the beat which includes the Tenth Street garage?"

"I did several times while I was serving as a supernumerary and I filled in for the men who were on the beat regularly, sometimes on their days off and sometimes on vacations."

Worked Same Beat.
"Did Mr. Poole's beat include the Tenth Street garage?"

"No, we worked the same beat."

"No."

"How many stops did you make on the trip?"

"As many as I already spoke of. The stop at my sister's, the stop out of Macon to get gas; the second stop to pick up the soldiers; another stop for gas and the last stop to let the soldiers out of the car."

"Did you take a drink of liquor on the way?"

"When was the first time you ever saw the car in which you made the trip?"

"Poole Came to Room."

"The first time I saw the car in Atlanta, when Mr. Poole came to my room."

"You say you didn't stop anywhere to take a drink?"

Editor Tells "Georgia Day" Dinner Governmental Thrift Needed.

iciency, which is another name for extravagance, is the enemy of the state. In the recommendations adopted by the conference following the banquet were those suggesting the organization of a local or county chamber of commerce to carry on a program of activities in its community, to see and improve the state and business conditions; to initiate immediately a program insisting upon economy in government, the prompt liquidation of government's principal debts; maintenance by business and industrial heads in every community of a complete staff of employees in the state; to establish a kind of program for needed city and county improvements which would include a campaign to have private citizens undertake building, repair and modernization; the advocacy of production and consumption of Georgia products; inauguration of a back-to-the-farm movement; and the re-establishment of individual credit, with co-operation among every city, town and village in the state.

Georgia Is "Land of Plenty."
At the noon dinner served at the Chamber of Commerce Friday it was announced that Georgia is a self-sustaining land of plenty, where in its citizens are assured such a variety of products that to ignore the "live-at-home" principle constitutes a gross extravagance.

Attending the widespread gesture of native resources of the state were many presidents of chambers of commerce, business leaders and editors from all over Georgia, and the exhibition of home-grown and home-made products was a feature of the great that it overflowed local facilities of display.

Governor Russell, chief speaker at the first of the "Georgia Day" meetings held Friday, struck the keynote of the movement when he exhorted Georgians to reduce the size of the state's annual budget, which depended to a large degree on the products of this state for existence and material profit.

In this recommendation the governor set forth three specific suggestions—that Georgians increase the production of crops and other commodities which the state produces; that the development of natural resources of the state be expanded, especially those of the forests and the state's great deposits of natural gas and valuable minerals. The third, and perhaps most important suggestion, the governor said, was for the establishment of a great number of state facilities which will take care of the products raised on Georgia farms.

Governor Russell delivered the principal address, resulting from a banquet of 250 visitors representing every section of the state and virtually all classes of the state's population. At a luncheon meeting which assumed the gargantuan proportions of a Roman feast and which was labeled a "Forward Georgia" dinner, the governor was served with nearly 25 different dishes representing the variety of products grown in Georgia. At the noon dinner, Governor Russell, of Grady county, member of the state court of appeals, acted as toastmaster, and addresses were confined to brief remarks by a number of speakers, all of whom recommended the "Georgia Day" plan, not only for the rural citizenry of the state but for urban dwellers.

After an afternoon theater party, the visitors were guests at a "Georgia products" banquet at the Capital City Club. The dinner, which was served with nearly 25 different dishes representing the variety of products grown in Georgia, was a great success. The governor, who was served with nearly 25 different dishes representing the variety of products grown in Georgia, was a great success. The governor, who was served with nearly 25 different dishes representing the variety of products grown in Georgia, was a great success.

The visitors were welcomed to the city by Mayor James L. Key, who spoke briefly on the importance of the "Georgia Day" movement. Mayor Key introduced Mayor Thomas M. Hayes, of Savannah.

In his talk before the forenoon session, Mayor Russell pointed out that the state is producing from Georgia millions of pounds of pork, beef and mutton, poultry and millions of dozens of eggs at the same time when the crop of cotton is being sold for less than it cost for its production. Such a situation, the governor said, cannot continue.

"We now have some 100,000 Georgia farms that we had in 1900, and only about one-tenth as many sheep. The wheat crop of Georgia in 1900 was worth $5,000,000, while today the wheat crop is bringing only $500,000."

The governor said it is his conviction that the chief reason for the lack of financial progress among farmers of the state is the absence of proper marketing facilities, as well as the lack of adequate farm education. Proper education of the farmer along technical lines will result in the production on a greater scale of crops than the farmer is now producing. ## JOHNSON DEMANDS U. S. FEED JOBLESS as has been described down the avenue as rivaling a state of war.

"Remember," he exhorted the senate, "the greatest man in history was the poorest."

"We have found the moratorium was a dud; it benefited nobody except a few bankers. The difficulty with our legislation is that it has begun at every city and town and village in the state."

"But now," he said, waving his arms, "finally and at last, we come down to the bottom."

"Inarticulate are they at the bottom. But they are human beings, just like you and just like me. You may resent that, sir, but I glory in it."

NEW YORK CRACKERS SEEK TO BUY CRACKERS

There seems to be quite a disparity of opinion, as one might expect, with regard to the physical condition of Jack Dempsey. Mr. George Kirksey, of the United Press, reporting the Christner-Dempsey match, is very friendly to Dempsey but does not permit it to influence his reporting. His story in The Constitution of Friday morning was an excellent one. He said that Christner dropped as much from exhaustion as from the blows struck by Dempsey. Kirksey further reported that Dempsey's legs wobbled in the second round and that he had difficulty walking the 24 feet across the ring after the final fall-down by Christner.

Stewart Bell, the sports editor of the Cleveland Press, is very direct about it. "Why don't you retire Jack?" he asked. "You aren't even a good hollow shell. You are through." "Stew" Bell is a very pleasant chap to know. He speaks the truth as he sees it and sometimes it stings.

Dan Taylor, of the News: "I never saw Christner take such a licking. Dempsey's legs are the question. He can still hit." Those reports are almost unanimous. Mr. Kirksey and Mr. Taylor were a bit more charitable than Stewart Bell but they all noticed those wobbling legs, the same legs that wobbled and buckled against Tunney.

The first fighter in condition, as Christner wasn't, who will stay away for three or four rounds, will beat Dempsey. King Levinsky won't. He'll go in there swinging and get punched right in the chin.

I CAN'T ARGUE.

I cannot argue very well with Stewart Bell or Dan Taylor. I argued with them for six weeks before the Stribling-Schmeling fight in Cleveland.

And after the fight that sultry July night, when we were putting the lids on the typewriters and taking a last look at the ring which was covered with blood and water and dead "Canadian soldiers," those huge flies that come across the lake, "Stew" Bell and Dan Taylor looked at me and nodded their heads sympathetically yet with a hint of "I told you so."

What a story it would be if W. L. Stribling were to pound down young Ernie Schaff and get another shot and win. I'd like to nod at them. They're good boys. Opinions will differ. And someone always wins.

WHY THE DELAY?

Chicago officially announced Thursday that the Schaff-Stribling fight was on for February 26. That date was announced in The Constitution about three or four weeks ago. And denied by Chicago.

A letter from "Pa" Stribling came Thursday saying that the Striblings were about ready to pull up stakes in Florida and head for Chicago and the fight.

This reporter has been with the Striblings too long to feel other than a definite interest in them and their fight plans. They have always been clean in the ring. No stigma is attached to their long record. And while their hopes of a heavyweight championship seem definitely lost there is always hope. This is in the nature of a cheer for W. L. Stribling in his Chicago fight.

THE CARDS (INMAN PARK).

And so Moe Kunsberg and Ray Humphries have signed with the Hartford baseball club. And will go to training camp at Macon and perhaps on to Hartford.

How the years do get on. It seems but last week that Moe Kunsberg, clad in an old pair of long pants and a ragged old shirt, was pitching something like 19 straight games for the Inman Park Cardinals and winning 17 of that number in 1929. And Ray Humphries was in the outfield for that irrepressible, irresponsible outfit of that year.

They might have been national champions. They were in the semi-finals of the Eastern series. And just before going to the park most of the team took a taxi from their hotel in Washington, something like eight of them packing in and paying a dime each, to the Washington monument.

And walked all the way up. And lost by one run in the afternoon. Another of that team that is pretty sure to go well in professional ball is Bill Good, son of Wilbur Good, former manager of the Crackers. It was a great outfit. And Atlanta baseball fans will wish them well.

THESE ATHLETIC PICTURES.

Sport events have just about captured the cinema business. Henry Kimmel writes from the Rialto that the Notre Dame-Southern California picture will be on there for a week, beginning today. It's a great picture. As good as the Southern California-Tulane shots, which won the town. And Earle Griggs writes from the Capitol that Wisconsin's basketball team will appear there in a series of basketball shorts. Also beginning today.

THEY JUST DON'T LIKE US.

Yankee ingenuity never seems to get the old applause. Instead it gets the old raspberry. When the American yacht won from the Shamrock there was a claim that the Americans had tricked the English with a new type mast.

And now there is complaint because the Stevens brothers have applied blow torches to their bob-sled runners to make them go faster over the ice. The trouble, I suspect, is not with the type of yacht masts or blow torches, but with the fact that the Americans over-emphasize things by winning most events.

DON'T YOU DETEST—

The fellow who borrows quarters and half dollars and "forgets" to pay them back?

NO FANS, BOUT OFF.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The scheduled 10-round fight between Don Petrin, of Newark, N. J., and Tiny Austin, of Miami, was called off tonight when only a handful of spectators appeared at the coliseum. Admission was refunded.

LEFTY'S NO HOLDOUT.

Lefty Grove, the best pitcher in the American league, hasn't signed his contract. But that's no holdout news. Connie Mack says the Athletic ace will be on hand when the big show starts and Connie never says anything for publication that he isn't sure is so.

ATLANTA DOGS TAKE RIBBONS AT NEW YORK

Entries Owned by Paul Hamer and Miss Johnson Win.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Blue Dan of Happy Valley, a blue and white spotted English setter, today became an outstanding favorite to win the grand championship of the Westminster Kennel Club as he paraded through his breed before 5,000 canine fanciers who thronged Madison Square Garden.

Runner-up for the "best in the show" award last year, Blue Dan probably is the most popular dog entered in the show. When the call went out for the judging of the best English setter, thousands of lovers of dogs left the other rings and the exhibit in the garden basement and rushed to find, standing firm around the arena where Judge William H. Pym, of Vancouver, B. C., faced seven of the best English setters in the show.

Entered by A. A. Mitten's Happy Valley kennels, of Philadelphia, and shown by Ben Lewis, Blue Dan completely monopolized his class. Future of Arken, a 10-month-old collie puppy owned by Charles A. Wernsman, of Derby, Conn., won the puppy class and carried off enough of the notice the best of dogs and best of winners only to lose the championship of the breed after a long struggle with last year's titlist, Lucason of Ashstead of Belhaven, owned by Florence B. Hich, of Red Bank, N. J.

The defending champion of the Airedales, Frederic H. Hoe's Walnut Challenger, of New Brunswick, N. J., was forced to give way to a new titleholder by the name of Briar Croft Walnut Commander from the Briar Croft kennels, of Youngstown, Ohio. Paul Hamer, of Atlanta, Ga., carried off two firsts and a second with Newbold Top Light in the Airedale class. She won both first and second prizes in the puppy and novice classes and placed second in among the American-bred bitches.

Miss Pam Johnson, also of Atlanta, carried off the honors in the open class for dachshund bitches, winning first with Vova Von Tenghaus.

SMITHIE BOXERS BATTLE TONIGHT

Thirty-three rounds of amateur boxing will be offered at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Henry Grady gymnasium in the semi-finals of the annual Tech High school boxing tournament. The finals will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night, and members of the Smithie team to fight G. M. A. next Friday night will be selected from Monday's winners.

An admission of 25 cents for students and 50 cents for outsiders will be charged and the entire proceeds will go into the school athletic fund to buy boxing and wrestling equipment.

There will be 11 fights on the program and each will be three-minute rounds under the regular amateur rules. E. L. Shepherd, boxing instructor at Tech High, will be in charge of the bouts.

A feature of the lightweight class will be a fight between John Murphy and Herman Friedman, who fought Thursday night to a draw. There will be at least one fight in every weight class, with two in some of the lighter divisions.

The card: Edwin Reed vs. Les Graham. George Leathers vs. Joe Chastain. Harry Warlick vs. Charles Gaddis. Herbert Warlick vs. Ross Venable. Arthur Williams vs. J. E. Lillian. F. C. Sutton vs. W. Stalker. Paul Williams vs. Chester Stockman. David Williams vs. Herman Friedman. A. L. Lachman vs. Edwin Friedman. F. Coleman vs. C. Koon.

Decatur Divides Marietta Games

MARIETTA, Ga., Feb. 12.—Decatur High's basketball teams broke even here tonight in a double-header with the Decatur team. The boys won out, 32 to 19, while Marietta's girls earned a 19-13 victory to get an even break in the double-header.

Anderson and Murdoch were outstanding for Decatur, while Brand and Dobbin played best for the Marietta boys.

In the girls' game Baker and Coyle were best for Marietta, while Holt played best for Decatur.

Sington, Howard Sign Their Papers

When he opened his mail at his Spiller field office this morning following a week's absence, Business Manager Chick Root of the Atlanta Crackers, found two signed contracts awaiting him.

One was from "Chick" Howard, experienced right-hander who was loaned out to Reading last year by the Crackers and the other from Freddie Sington, former All-American football player and candidate for an outfield job.

Several players returned contracts unsigned, pending an adjustment on salary differences. Seven Crackers have signed to date. They are Bladen, Howard and Elrod, pitchers; Bejin, McGaughey and Herrin, infielders, and Sington, outfielder.

The majority of players are still unsigned.

Georgia Wins Over 'Gators, 38 to 33

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Georgia's Bulldog cagers lashed out in a final three-minute attack here tonight to beat Florida's Alligator quintet, 38 to 33, in the first of a two-game series.

Leading 20 to 11 at the half, the 'Gators appeared to have the game in the bag and sent in the second stringers in the last minutes. Tech Young, Smith and Moran shot field goals for Georgia and changed the entire picture.

It was one of the roughest games played here this season and March, 'Gator center, was banished for personal fouls.

PURPLE BEATS LANIER, 34-24

Boys' High hung up a 34-to-24 victory over Lanier High of Macon, Friday night on the Henry Grady court, to even a two-game series for the season. Lanier having won the first game in Macon some time ago.

Gilbert Stacy, all-prep guard of the last year, was shifted back to his old position, and Bowden and Tumlin, center and forward, respectively, were inserted into the lineup and proved a winning combination.

Boys' High played one of its best games of the season to turn back the Lanier Pinks. The gunning and passing stood out and Lanier was given few real scoring opportunities. So well was the Boys' High guarding that neither of the Lanier forwards scored a single point.

Tumlin and Bowden, two new Boys' High stars, "stole" the show with 9 and 11 points respectively, while the guarding of Stacy and Levin was all that could be asked, not a point having been scored against them.

Buier and Telford were outstanding players for Lanier High with nine and five points, respectively. They also played excellent at guards.

JACKETS MEET TIGERS TONIGHT AT AUDITORIUM

Game Starts at 8:15 O'Clock; Tech "Rats" Meet Lanier.

By Jimmy Jones.

After visiting around at other campuses for some time, Georgia Tech's basketball team comes back home tonight with Auburn's veteran five as the opposition.

The game is scheduled to begin at 8:15 at the Atlanta auditorium and will be preceded by a contest between Bobby Dodd's Tech freshmen and Lanier High school of Macon, starting at 7 o'clock.

Tonight's Tech-Auburn contest is by way of being a return engagement, as the Jackets of Roy Mundorff dropped a nip and tuck struggle in the Auburn gym several weeks ago. Tech lost by a very close margin and since that time the young men of the Flats have been very eager to get another shot at the Plainsmen.

VETERAN FIVE.

A victory over the visitors will not be so easily obtained, however, for Sam McAllister, the heavy-set mentor of the Tigers, has one of the south's most colorful teams this year with a veteran star at virtually every position.

Captain Jack Stewart is the best center Auburn has ever had. Standing 77 1/2 inches tall, Stewart is a great jumper and also adept on defense. He is the conference high jump champion and aspires to leap his height across the bar.

"Little Papa" Lumpkin, who is quite a court artist, and Ralph Jordan, crack scorer, are at forwards, while Lindley Hatfield of football fame and the experienced Charles Kelley will handle the guards.

Forwards, with Katz and possibly Korf certain of getting in as relief men.

GOOD COMBINATION.

Roy McArthur and Jesse Davis, who have developed into a good defensive combination, will start at guards. John Pool, who also has done good work, may get the call in place of McArthur. Tonight's game is one of the few remaining on Tech's pre-tourney schedule. Next week there will be games with Mercer Wednesday night and Florida Saturday night. Georgia is here for the "rubber" game February 23 and that is all.

The Auburn team should be the most colorful to visit here thus far, for the talent of every player is well known.

Admission prices for tonight will be 50 and 75 cents. A large crowd is expected.

Court Leaders In Hard Games.

Kentucky and Maryland, the Southern conference basketball leaders, face formidable opponents tonight in their drives toward an unbeaten conference season.

At Lexington, Kentucky, now at the top with eight victories, plays Tennessee, its closest athletic rival. Tennessee already has beaten Duke, the team that gave Kentucky its hardest fight and led the Wildcats most of their engagement. In addition, Kentucky may be without the services of its center, Forrest Sale, the high scorer who was injured in the Alabama contest Monday.

Maryland encounters Virginia at College Park. Earlier this year the Cavaliers played the Maryland quintet to a standstill, losing by only a few points. Maryland has six victories and no defeats.

Two of the strongest teams of the middle Atlantic sector meet in Durham as North Carolina plays Duke. Auburn, another favorite, tackles Georgia Tech at Atlanta, while Alabama looks for a rest game with Sewanee at Tuscaloosa.

Clemson plays South Carolina at Clemson. Florida meets Georgia at Gainesville and Tulane plays Louisiana State at Baton Rouge. V. P. I. tackles W. & L. at Blacksburg, Va.

North Carolina State meets Wake Forest at Raleigh and V. M. I. has a contest with William and Mary at Lexington, Va.

Tech's Big Little Man

When Tech's basketball team takes on the colorful Auburn Tigers at the auditorium tonight, the crowd will keep its eyes on the movement of Hyman (Little Kitty) Katz. As a substitute forward, he has been a consistent performer for Roy Mundorff's team all season.

Every Major Outfit Has Dixie Pitcher

Atlanta Hurlers in Big Time Are Kain, Casey, Chambers and Smith.

By Dillon Graham.

When the fusiliers start firing in the big leagues this summer, every club will have at least one pitcher from the south.

Three star Dixie hurlers are with the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals, managed by Gabby Street, of Huntsville, Ala. They are Paul Derringer, whose record last year was one of the best in the senior league; the veteran Flint Rhem and the loud-speaking recruit, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, who already has announced he will pitch the opening game of the series next fall.

Derrienger comes from Springfield, Ky., and Dean calls Russellville, Ark., home. Rhem is the scion of Rhems, S. C.

With the Cleveland Indians is Wesley Ferrell, the 24-year-old ace from Guilford, N. C., who won 22 and lost 12 in 1931. Charles Reddock, of Laurel, Miss., also pitches for the Tribe.

The New York Yankees have a quartet of southern moundmen. They are Ivey Paul Andrews, of Birmingham; James Weaver, of Fulton, Ky.; Luther Gates, of Mississippi, and Henry Johnson, of Bradenton, Fla.

Ted Lyons, of Vinton, La., and Jimmy Moore, of Monticello, Ark., work for the Chicago White Sox.

SHAKY KAIN. The Anderson, S. C., big right-hander, Leroy McHaffey, hurled for Connie Mack's Athletics. Others on the Philadelphia Nationals' roster include Shaky Kain, of Atlanta; Bill Brigham, of Greenville, S. C.; Ed Trask, of Centerville, Miss.; Sol Carter, of Opp, Ala.; and Louis Filler, of Five Points, Ala. Most of these are rookies.

The St. Louis Browns have Wallace Hebert, of Lake Charles, La.; Hugh Casey and John Kagan, of Mississippi, pitches for Washington. Ed Morris, of Florence, Ala., is with the Boston Red Sox. Jim Mooney, John McGraw's sensational young rookie of last year, will be back with the Giants again. Mooney is from Mooreburg, Tenn.

BOB SMITH. Guy Bush, of Mississippi, and Bob Smith, of Atlanta, take orders from Rogers Hornsby, of the Chicago Cubs. The Phillies expect big things from Ruppert Wants Six Minor League Clubs for 'Chain Store' System.

By Jack Cuddy.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(UP)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, tonight announced the appointment of George M. Weiss, of the Baltimore Orioles, as assistant secretary and general manager of the Yankees' minor league interests.

This appointment is an important event in baseball. Colonel Ruppert said, because it shows that the Yankees intend extending their minor league interests in a big way.

"Within three years I hope to own outright six minor league clubs," Ruppert explained. "Our minor league interests already are so important that it is necessary to have a good man to handle them exclusively. As time goes on he may need an assistant himself."

The Yanks' owner said Weiss would at present handle club as a business and, at the same time, serve as acting manager of the New York club whenever Secretary Ed Barrow was absent because of illness or on business.

"We now own the Newark club outright, and have working agreements with Scranton, Cumberland and Albany," Ruppert continued. "Also we are negotiating for purchases or working agreements with Atlanta and Springfield. It is my plan to own outright six minor league clubs within three years. My main objective in extending my minor league interests is to acquire clubs whose players can be developed to their very best. This will give the Yankees a tremendous source of power in the baseball world."

Although Weiss had been seen in the Yankees office several times during the past week, the announcement of his appointment came as a distinct surprise to baseball circles. It had been believed that Ruppert would make no minor league extensions until after the depression. Secretary Barrow has been in ill health for some time, and although his illness necessitated his absence from the office on several occasions, the appointment of an assistant was entirely unexpected.

Weiss, 36, has been in baseball for 18 years. While a student at Yale he organized in 1914 a team known as the New Haven Colonials which played Sunday games at Lighthouse Point, just outside New Haven. He directed the team for five years. From this club Weiss went into organized baseball at the age of 23, acquiring possession of the New Haven club of the Eastern league. He was extremely successful. In 1921, when he was head of the club, it never finished in the second division. Moreover, he sold more players than all the other seven clubs in the league combined.

Three years ago, when the death of Jack Dunn made it necessary for the Baltimore club to obtain a successor as head of the Orioles, Weiss was even more pronounced than he was in the league combined.

No Sale Expected; Player Deals Likely.

Business Manager F. H. Ross, when reached by telephone last night, said that he knew nothing of any effort by the Yankees to purchase the Atlanta Crackers. A working agreement is likely.

It is thought that there will be no sale this year. Colonel Ruppert will probably make a working agreement with the Crackers which may eventually lead to a purchase in 1933 or later. The organization for 1932 is permanent.

Columbus Beaten By G. M. A. Cadets

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 12.—Georgia Military Academy, of Atlanta, defeated Columbus High, 40 to 24, here tonight, in the first of a two-game road trip for the Cadets. They play the Auburn freshmen Saturday night.

The visitors jumped into an early lead. In the second half G. M. A. exhibited a great passing game that prevented the locals from securing many chances at the basket.

Jockey Eats His Way Onto Another Horse

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—(AP)—There is nothing a jockey had rather have than a good square meal and that is just what he can't have if he is to keep riding. But sometimes they get desperate and go on an eating spree.

The other day at the Fair Grounds, Earl Pools had to make 105 pounds to get the mount on Pros and Poetry. He made it by starvation, but after he had brought his horse across the wire a winner, he sent a boy after a beef sandwich.

It tasted so good, he kept the boy going after more and when he was called for his next mount, the scales showed 105. "Too much beef. Got out," said the judge. "Aw, I don't care. I was starved," Earl said. Today he rode at 111 on horses that called for more weight.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—(A)—
With the northern market closed for the Lincoln holiday and the customary interchange between the markets missing, trading here was rather quiet today. Prices were sustained by moderate trade buying and the bulge in stocks of the previous day.

After gaining 3 to 5 points during the first hour trading quieted down and for the rest of the morning prices fluctuated within the early range, gradually losing the advance. After keeping within the same range all afternoon prices improved a point at two at the end and the market closed steady, net unchanged to 2

VALUE OF DOLLAR LOWERED IN PARIS

PARIS, Feb. 12.—(P)—The American dollar dropped on the Paris exchange today from yesterday's quotation.

of 25.40 francs to 25.35, American bankers announced. Emphasizing that the drop had no relation to the Glass-Steagall banking law introduced in the American Congress yesterday, American circles explained that the drop was attributable to a change in minting charges. They said the Bank of France had increased the gold minting charge from francs per kilo to 44 francs per operative on February 15.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 12.—(P)—Submitting to the policies and purposes of the Bibb County Taxpayers' League, J. L. Parker, Macon druggist and World War veteran, Friday announced his candidacy for sheriff of Bibb county, subject to the primary of March.

He pledged a reduction in expenses of the sheriff's office of not less than $5,000 a year, $2,500 of which would be by lowering the salaries of the sheriff and chief deputy.

In the campaign he will oppose Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., who has held the office for more than 20 years. Though he has not officially announced, Sheriff Hicks will ask for re-election.

Head Cold Pains Now Relieved In Three Minutes

A simple head cold often produces intense suffering from headache, neuralgia, etc., and you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "R.C." a reliable, pleasant acting remedy.

"R.C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relieving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

"R.C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, reducing fever, and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. Get "R.C." wherever drugs are sold in 10c and 25c packages.—(adv.)

SCIENTIST BUILDS TWO-TON SCALES TO WEIGH ATOMS

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(P)—A precision mass spectrograph, a two-ton scale by which physicists weigh individual atoms, was announced today by the American Institute of Physics. The scales, which figuratively "lift" under the weight of one sextillionth of an ounce, were built by Dr. Kenneth T. Bainbridge, of the Bartol Foundation, at Swarthmore, Pa.

Atoms are weighed to discover their "lost" packing fractions. This fraction is a tiny loss in weight, something missing from atomic centers, or nuclei. It is believed to be energy escaped during creation of the atoms.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan believes that a cosmic ray is one of these lost packing fractions, which goes shooting across space at the speed of light.

MANCHESTER DOOMED TO DIE FEBRUARY 26

"Hope This Sentence Isn't Carried Out," Michigan Youth Comments.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 12.—(P)—Earl Manchester, 21, convicted as a hired assassin in the insurance plot slaying of James Parks, orphan printer, was sentenced Friday to die in the electric chair February 26 by Judge Malcolm D. Jones.

The condemned man, who had been permitted to remain seated while sentence was pronounced commented "Gee, I hope this sentence isn't carried out," as bailiffs led him from the courtroom.

Manchester was resentenced shortly after the Georgia supreme court had declined to rehear the appeal of Mrs. Sarah Powers, aged boarding house keeper under life sentence as instigator of the plot.

Judge Jones declined a request of Manchester's attorney that the execution date be set 30 days from Friday, the maximum interval allowed by law. The judge declared the two-week interval would be plenty of time for the defense to file such motions for a new trial as Manchester's attorney deemed necessary.

Since Governor Russell declined executive clemency several days ago, Manchester's attorney had requested an additional motion for a new trial. The judge declared he was in touch with witnesses he said were necessary in such an action.

The condemned man, whose home is in Rochester, Mich., appeared in court in a neat black pin-striped suit.

One warrant charged the jurist with being an accessory after the fact in the embezzlement charge against Miss Harwood by "the manufacture or attempted manufacture of evidence tending to prove her innocence." It also charged him with the mutilation, alteration and the destruction of records in the commissioner of revenue's office relative to the charge against the daughter.

ENGLISH JOURNALIST LECTURES AT ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 12.—Prediction that the next 10 years will reveal whether the American capitalist system, Britain's government-controlled capitalist system, or Russia's communistic system will succeed was made here today by S. K. Ratcliffe, noted English journalist and lecturer.

Mr. Ratcliffe, using as a topic, "England in Crisis and Renewal," was the third of the Barrow Foundation speakers this year. He was greeted with a well-filled chapel of students, faculty members and others.

Speaking of the success of the British labor party in the future, he believed it would be many years before it would regain power over the government. It hasn't made up its mind yet but I believe it will choose to co-operate in helping restore the capitalist system.

JUDGE FLYNT WILL RUN FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

GRiffin, Ga., Feb. 12.—Judge J. J. Flynt, of Griffin, has announced as a candidate for congress from the sixth congressional district to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Sam Rutherford.

Judge Flynt is one of the best known men in public life in the state and enjoys a long and enviable record. He served many years in both houses of the legislature, is a former president of the state senate, chairman of the highway and other important committees assignments, and also served several years as judge of the city court of Griffin.

In private life he is an outstanding attorney, large land owner and extensive farmer of Spalding county, his chief interests being in the promotion of agricultural welfare. He is a warm advocate of the Long cotton plan as being the only practical solution of the farmers' trouble of the time.

His wide knowledge of public questions and long experience in both private and public affairs makes him a formidable candidate for this important office and he is recognized as a statesman and orator of marked ability.

The primary has been set for March 2, which makes it impossible for him to see all his friends throughout the district, he says.

Judge Flynt is the fifth candidate. The others are Harvey Kennedy, of Barnesville, who qualified with the ordinaries in the 13 counties of the sixth district today; W. Carlton Mobley, of Gray; Mrs. W. O. Kinney, Macon elderman, and E. L. Reagan, of McDonough.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Steinhauer, prominent Cobb county farmer, was re-elected president of the Cobb County Fair Association at the annual meeting of the board of directors. Other officers elected were Clark A. Baker, vice president; Fred and Mrs. Mobley, of Bibb and Jones county, respectively, will remain in the sixth district.

CANDIDATE KENNEDY HITS SECRETARY RIVAL. BARNESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 12.—"The late Sam Rutherford would have wanted the voters of the sixth district to pass upon who is to have access to the files he left," Harvey Kennedy, who is a candidate for the unexpired term, declared in a statement here tonight. Kennedy was replying to insinuations that Rutherford had indicated he wished his secretary to succeed him in office.

"Were the president of a large industrial corporation," Kennedy asked in his statement, "to die, does anyone suppose that his secretary would be promoted to the job because he was familiar with the company's files?"

Asserting that by reason of long legislative service and as an active figure in American Legion work he knew and understood the problems of the ex-service men, Kennedy added:

"There are pressing, paramount issues now before congress. This district is entitled to have in the halls of congress an experienced legislator. If I am given this honor, I promise a 'faithful administration of the job.'" for the last seven years has maintained consistent leadership of the screen. All picture-lovers will remember the great succession of hits bearing the lion trademark. To mention a few: "Ben-Hur," "The Big Parade," "White Shadows," "The Unholy Three," "Broadway Melody" and this very season (NOW!), Garbo in "Mata Hari," Marie Dressler in "Emma," Wallace Beery and Clark Gable in "Hell Divers," and Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in "The Champ."

Spating no efforts to bring out the best, M-G-M engaged the one and only, Frederick Lonsdale, to write an original screen play. His "Lovers Courageous" is even greater than his celebrated stage successes such as "Aren't We All," "The High Road," "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," "The Best People."

TO HAVE GREAT TALKIES WE MUST HAVE GREAT WRITERS!

New Stage, Screen Programs At Atlanta Theaters Today

IN "LOVERS COURAGEOUS"
A delicious story of young love, facing bitter struggle and privation, but battling bravely through to success and happiness is told in "Lovers Courageous," the newest screen feature by MGM, which opens its run at the Fox theater today. Starred in the production are Robert Montgomery and Made Evans, while the supporting cast contains such names as Roland Young, Frederick Kerr, Beryl Mercer, Jackie Searl, Alan Mowbray, etc. The picture is from an original story for the screen by Frederick Lonsdale, distinguished English playwright, and was directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

On the stage the Fox presents today a Fanchon and Marco idea that fully lives up to its exceptionally appealing title, "Dream House." Its Sun-kist Beauties are more beautiful than ever, its stage settings are the last word in loveliness and it has a great line of principals. These include Ben Omar, O'Donnell Blair and Company, Hastings and Gauthier and Louise Glenn.

Prominent among the list of short features filling spots as added attractions on the bill is a Laurel and Hardy comedy, with the usual cartoon and newswreel also mentioned. Enrico Leide and his orchestra and Al Evans at the organ provide the music for the program.

GEORGIA HAS SENSATION
IN "THE MAN I KILLED"

Paramount has combined all its efforts to advantage in the filming of "The Man I Killed," the feature attraction to be shown at the Keith's Georgia theater for one week beginning today.

Under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch, and with such stars as Lionel Barrymore, Phillips Holmes, Nancy

Carroll and a host of other brilliant players, noted for their great dramatic qualities, it is easily understood that the long run in New York at high prices was due this sensational masterpiece.

The story is woven around the temperamental young musician, who in war and in the course of his duty to his country, killed a young enemy in a hand-to-hand battle. After the man is dead the musician feels he is a murderer and has committed an unforgivable deed.

This situation gives marvelous advantage to express drama in the truest sense of the word, and the magic touch of Director Lubitsch completes the sensation of many seasons.

The vaudeville bill is headlined by "Gus Edwards' Revue," an elaborate display of song, dance and comedy. Next is Eddie Carr, giving impersonations of many celebrities; Flo Lewis, in a comedy skit called "I Wanna Go Home," and Aussie and Czech, experts with the bull-whip and battle-axe.

"MURDER AT MIDNIGHT"

The new program opening this morning at the Rialto theater has two big features. One is the full featured detail of the Notre Dame-South-Central California football classic of last

MRS. M. H. MARGESON
SEEKING PARAMOUNT

Mrs. M. H. Margeson, sponsor of Sunday shows to aid the city's needy, announced Friday that she was negotiating to obtain the Paramount theater again for Sunday to show "Shanghai Love," featuring Sally Blane and Noah Beery. The picture will run from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night, she said.

A definite agreement with the theater management had not been reached Friday night, but it was thought that the house would be obtained.

In which the famed Ramblers went down to their first defeat in three years, the final score being 16 to 14 with a field score deciding the issue in the final minute of play.

The other feature is a startling and suspenseful mystery play on the screen, entitled "Murder at Midnight." Sufficiently different from other mystery stories to sustain its mystery to the final sequence and splendidly acted by a thoroughly competent cast, this is one of the better talkies of the season.

WALTER GIESEKING, RENOVED PIANIST,
REVEALS ARTISTRY

Atlanta found another pianist at whose artistic shrine to pay homage Friday evening when Walter Gieseking made his first appearance in this city, presented in Wesley Memorial auditorium by the Atlanta Music Club. Gieseking's playing is instilled with an indefinable something that is greater than inspiration, that is musical understanding, that is beyond individuality. And his is the power to make his listeners feel with him.

Gieseking's program Friday night clearly revealed the bigness of the artist, his versatility in pianistic production. From the inimitable rendition of the Bach's first major Partita, the exquisite classic style of the three Scarlatti Sonatas, the dramatic and impassioned interpretation of the Beethoven Sonata in G minor, the orchestral fullness of the Schumann "Etudes Symphoniques" obtained by an impeccable technique apparently Debussey's "Reflets dans l'Eau," the fanciful imagery of "Poissens d'Or" by the same composer, through the final tone of the incomparable execution of the "Ravens" always was evidenced the sincerity of the artist.

And Gieseking was generous with encores, giving in appreciation for an enthusiastic reception of each, "Gavotte and Musette in G Minor," Walter Niemann's "Garden Music," his own transcription of Richard Strauss' "Scherzo," Debussy's "Gavotte and Musette," Chopin's "Berceuse" and "Evocation," by Albeniz.

But one might write on and on about Gieseking's program Friday evening and still feel that justice had not been done to his superb artistry—at least that is the way this writer feels.

JEAN HARLOW SCORES
IN CAROL FEATURE

You may have heard the story about the small town gal going to New York, landing a job at fifty a week and sending a hundred each pay day home to mother. Well, Mas Clark, as Gladys in "3 Wise Girls," now showing at the Capitol, shows how the trick is performed right before your eyes, only in the long run she ends up behind the eight ball as she feared she might do.

Jean Harlow, she of the platinum hair, again proves her ability to pack them in the theater by just stepping from step-in to step-in as usual. What she lacks in histrionic achievement she more than makes up in curves. Refusing to be tested by the Utopian lure of Park Avenue, she gets her man in the end.

Marie Prevost, as Dot, adds to her popularity as a burlesque comedian. All in all the picture is a crowd-pleaser, which is what brings in the potatoes at the box office. Completing the program is a newswreel, Oswald county basketball short and Bill Crosby crooning as if his heart would break.

MEETING TO ATTACK
RELIGIOUS PREJUDICE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(P)—An attempt to eradicate prejudices created by religious differences will be made at a conference here on March 7 to be attended by hundreds of prominent Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

President Hoover has been invited to open the meeting. Those who will speak include Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland; Roger W. Straus, of New York; Professor Carlton, of New York; and Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington.

RAIDED STILL CAPACITY
20,000 GALLONS A DAY

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12.—(P)—Prohibition agents raided a block long warehouse within half a square of the federal court building here today and seized what they termed the largest grain alcohol distillery ever taken by the government.

Pure grain alcohol was the only product of the four-story distillery, which was equipped with a copper still with a daily capacity of 20,000 gallons, six 50,000-gallon mash vats, a complete bottling plant, coils and even a laboratory for testing the products.

MEDICAL JOURNAL
RAPS LIQUOR CHARGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(P)—The journal of the American Medical Association in its current issue to be distributed tomorrow will criticize Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, former president of the association for his recent testimony on prohibition before a senate subcommittee.

The editorial will say that Dr. Bevan showed "an extraordinary lack of confidence in his professional brethren" when he testified that 90 per cent of liquor prescriptions written by physicians were for bootleg purposes.

ALICE SILVERTHORNE
TO WED MAN SHE SHOT

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(P)—The Daily Express said today that Alice Silverthorne, niece of Mrs. Ogden Armour and formerly the Comtesse Frederic De Janze, is to marry Raymond De Trafford, whom she was charged with shooting in a train in 1927. She shot herself also.

She was tried in France on the shooting charge and acquitted. Formal notice of the marriage would be given in Paris today, the newspapers said, and the wedding would take place within two weeks.

"THE APPLE CART"
PLEASES AUDIENCE
IN OPENING HERE

Whether you're a member of the Bernard Shaw boosters' club or just plain theater-goer, "The Apple Cart," as presented at the Paramount by a highly capable cast, will afford you a full portion of great good fun.

If you fall in the former serious-minded category you probably will find the most of your enjoyment in the ample and facile exposition of the Shavian political philosophy. If, however, you classify with us more frivolous folk you will glean at least a round hundred chuckles from the Irish wit's smart lines and restrained clowning in situation.

Boyd Irwin, as Magnus, king of 1960 England, is nothing short of splendid in the part, with his supple never falters in an important detail. Irwin, an actor of British antecedents and wide experience, is comical master of the central role and gets the utmost from it in humor and quiet drama with just the right dash of pathos speaking through philosophy.

Ernest Hart, as Lysistrata, the power-mistress-general; Chappell Dossett, as the prime minister, and Ann Berryman, in a particularly silly part as the royal mistress, deserve mention in limited space.

The story has to do with the tribulations of a shrewd king trying to save his country from big politicians who are the handmaids of big business. In addition to his jokes at "the interests" Shaw finds time to apply the elastic to the American pantaloons—the old fellow having learned long since that we are immensely pleased by his lampooning.

The whole affair lacks the sparkle of some of the bearded fellow's earlier efforts in the drama but still possesses enough substance and vigor to make extremely tasty fare, particularly for numerous folks starved for flesh-and-blood stage plays. "The Apple Cart" will be presented again this afternoon and tonight.

GENEVA, Feb. 12.—(P)—The Havas News Agency reported today that France and Great Britain had agreed on a meeting of the powers in June for the purpose of seeking a lasting solution of the reparations problem.

An official communiqué, it was said, would be published tomorrow in Paris and London.

FACTIONAL CLASH
LOOMS IN CONNECTICUT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 12.—(P)—The alignment of Homer S. Cummings, former national democratic chairman, with the campaign of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination today forecast a factional clash in the party in Connecticut.

Roosevelt supporters in this state are expected to be opposed, when delegates to the national convention are chosen, by a group favorable to the nomination of Alfred E. Smith.

James J. Walsh, of Meriden, former state chairman, said Monday he was willing to lead an attempt to obtain an instructed delegation for Smith.

Over-Sea

BY BYRON DARNTON.
Associated Press Cable Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The world disarmament conference, in session about two weeks now, has produced two high points. First came the French strategic move of proposing a mailed fist for the League of Nations, and then came the surprising new Maxim Litvinoff.

This new Litvinoff is surprising indeed. The Russian commissar for foreign affairs always has been looked at in advance in Geneva. He has borne a bad-boy reputation among the representatives of the capitalistic states, for he had a way of lecturing, of being doctrinaire, of saying bluntly that the way to disarm was to disarm with no stipulations about it and no hedging. In the past there has been no conciliation about him.

The cables have brought untold quantities of words to America about the doing of this greatest disarmament conference of all time, and a fair share of them have concerned the new Litvinoff and the excellent impression he has made.

In past international parleys the Russian has been accused of advancing his "total and general disarmament" scheme somewhat in the spirit of the schoolboy who plugs a paper wall at teacher and then looks nobly innocent. His critics have said he knew very well the proposal never would be accepted, and that he sought to traduce the dignity and sincerity of his fellow diplomats by saying, "Let us disarm," thereby appearing noble.

This year the shoe is on the other foot. M. Andre Tardieu, French minister of war and head of his nation's delegation to the conference, upset the program at the outset by presenting France's suggestion that the League be equipped with a strong armed force, contributed to by the powers. France would be first to drop her contribution in the hat, said Minister Tardieu.

And the critics, shifting their shafts from the Russian to the Frenchman, averred there was another case of seeking credit for a suggestion impossible to be carried out.

While M. Litvinoff assures his colleagues that Russia, still standing for total disarmament, is willing to negotiate—while he emphasizes his determination to achieve some advance in handling the arms problem, even though the ideal is not reached—the newspapers back home in Russia continue to look at Geneva in the light of the events that are taking place in China.

Whatever effect may finally be exerted on the Geneva meeting by the Shanghai affair, one thing already is apparent. It has interfered with the disarmament conference's publicity. Your newspaper will contain just so many columns of news. And when it is a question of presenting the arms of a minor power, or the details of the massing of troops at Shanghai and Woosung, the troops win out.

The great powers already have presented their programs at Geneva, and in them there are many points of agreement. Thus:

There is strong demand for abolition, or at least reduction in size, of capital ships, large aircraft carriers, submarines and heavy artillery. And there is agreement that lethal gases should be done away with, as well as all forms of bacteriological warfare.

Russia, Italy and Germany have made strong calls for disarmament, each basing its position on the theory that without disarmament there can be no security. But France, upheld by Belgium, Poland and the other lesser nations responsive to her, sticks to her thesis of security based on disarmament. Great Britain, holding that security depends on reduction in armaments, would place a limiting line. Japan calls for "disarmament without impairing national safety." The United States pleaded the power by reserving itself and coming out for budgetary restrictions on expenditures for war purposes.

30 Injured in Raid
On Socialist Rally

ZITTAU, Germany, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Thirty persons were injured here when police raided a mass meeting in which national socialists were trying to make themselves heard above the chorused shouting of communist opponents.

A bombardment of ash trays, coffee pots, mugs and chairs greeted the police as they burst into the meeting.

POLAND APPROVES
BUDGET FOR YEAR

WARSAW, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Polish parliament approved the national budget today for the year beginning April 1, calling for expenditures of 2,448,000,000 zlotys (about $270,000,000) and an income of 2,372,000,000 zlotys (about $261,000,000), the deficit to be met out of treasury reserves.

DICTATORSHIP SCORED BY EMMA GOLDMAN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Emma Goldman, former American anarchist, lectured tonight at Copenhagen University, warning the students against "the foul spirit of dictatorship threatening the happiness and culture of present and future generations."

ARMS MEE FATE
BASED ON RESULT
OF EASTERN CRISISChinese Delegate Declares Sanctity of Covenants Decisive Factor
in Success of Conference

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Dr. W. Yen, Chinese delegate to the World Disarmament conference, told the conference this morning that its success or failure depends upon the outcome of the conflict between China and Japan in the Far East.

If the covenant of the League and the Kellogg pact are permitted to crumble to pieces over the Sino-Japanese situation, the conference will fail. "The outcome of the present struggle to ward off external aggression in the most virulent form," he added, "must inevitably and largely determine the armament policy which the Chinese nation will pursue."

Dr. Yen dealt more with the Far Eastern situation in his address than with disarmament. "My country and my people," he said, "are not seeking pity or soliciting the armed help of other nations in our hour of trial, but we do demand that the nations that have affixed their signatures to the solemn instruments fulfill the obligations to which they have subscribed.

We do appeal to you to rally around the covenant and the Kellogg-Briand pact, for only by so doing can you make the work of disarmament real and permanent."

If, he said, the covenant and the Kellogg pact prove to be bulwarks of peace and international justice on which law-abiding nations can rely for safety during an armaments truce, the disarmament conference will mark a long step forward in the organization of peace.

"But if, by some unhappy mischance," he added, "these bulwarks should crumble, the Chinese people and the Chinese government would be regretfully compelled to put aside all other national tasks the building up of a national defense strong enough to secure respect and preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and political independence of China."

"Ladies and gentlemen, what are you going to do about it?"

Sir George Perley, Canadian delegate, told the conference that Canada will support "any and every constructive proposal for limitation and reduction of armaments."

The German proposals for disarmament will be laid before the conference next Wednesday, it was announced during today's session. They will be divided into two sections, one asking for general disarmament, for the other as well as the Versailles treaties, and another proposing to prohibit certain offensive weapons.

The Chinese government today issued a solemn declaration of its intention to resist the Japanese "invasion and slaughter of Chinese people."

Two camps have arisen which at first seemed irreconcilable but lately common sense has declared that they must eventually get together.

"Security first," is the slogan of one camp; "disarmament first" of the other. France is commander-in-chief of the security faction, with Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Rumania, and Belgium as her lieutenants. The commanders in the other camp are the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

Italy charged the conference opened discards points of view apparently incapable of reconciliation. France would not give up security in favor of disarmament, Germany wanted general disarmament for victor states as well as the vanquished. Italy wanted parity with France, which France would not grant.

France, whose plan for an international police force as presented by War Minister Andre Tardieu was aimed only at disarming Germany, mentioned disarmament, later expressed to the conference her willingness to disarm as well.

Italy charged her claim for parity to a claim for "persecution"—using a French term which did not appear in the English translation. This means approximately that France has achieved gradually through successive diminutions of the difference between the two countries. France and Italy already are conducting direct negotiations.

Germany said she would be willing that equality between victor and vanquished states be reached in some

Beer Regime Holds Sway in Paris
As Montmartre Sees New Night Life

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Since the end of the war, Montmartre has proven one of the best barometers for world business conditions.

The glided cabarets were the first to respond to the depression. One after one, they closed up. Toward the end of 1930 only two or three regular night cabarets in Montmartre were running on a paying basis.

line. Emerging from each ship was a stream of soldiers, although the heaviest movement appeared to have been completed.

As the fresh Japanese troops landed, Japanese bluejackets marched to the docks, apparently waiting their turn to embark on the same transport. Where they were destined to go was unknown to any but the Japanese, and they remained uncommunicative as to what was going on.

Thousands of Japanese troops landed, Japanese bluejackets marched to the docks, apparently waiting their turn to embark on the same transport. Where they were destined to go was unknown to any but the Japanese, and they remained uncommunicative as to what was going on.

Within the yards of warehouses immediately in front of the wharves were several thousand Japanese soldiers awaiting orders. The arms and equipment stacked in military precision, were on the ground about them. There also were many cavalry horses.

In one corner, 500 Japanese soldiers, awaiting orders in the grounds of a Japanese school, played with a half dozen Japanese children. They swung the children on the playground equipment. The youngsters and the soldiers alike laughed gaily in high amusement as the fighters awaited their turn to proceed with the business of battle.

Within were many artillery pieces. How many guns were there it was impossible to tell, but the squares adjacent to the waterfront were filled with them, while a near-by plot was given over to tanks.

The area near the docks became a theatre of activity. Armed Japanese patrols swarmed the streets leading to the wharves to prevent any onlooker approaching the waterfront. Possibly 5,000 soldiers could be seen. What had become of the others was not definitely established.

Many Move to Woosung.

Most of them, however, appeared to have moved down the Whangpoo shore toward the extreme eastern boundaries of the International Settlement in the general direction of Woosung. Another portion had marched into Hongkew, where they were expected to relieve Japanese bluejackets who had been on continuous duty there since the evacuation.

No sooner had the pale sun punctured the blanket of fog and smoke that overhung the city than the artillerymen and the soldiers, some unlimbered their guns and set them echoing over the metropolis. Quiet reigned at Woosung.

During 1931 only 4,055 business firms in Great Britain and Ireland went into the hands of receivers. The preceding year, which was far more favorable for business, saw 4,698 enterprises bankrupt. In Scotland and Ireland there were actually fewer such failures last year than in 1930.

British conservatism in business has come in for much criticism in recent years, yet it has saved hundreds of thousands of enterprises from going to the wall in the present crisis.

The severity of the test to which this conservatism is being put is revealed by the fact that bank clearings dropped 30.8 per cent during the last quarter of 1931 and 16.8 per cent for 1932 as a whole, reflecting a serious decline in business activity. The clearing have slumped from 44,896,077,000 pounds in 1929 to 36,235,989,000 pounds in 1932.

Of all the businesses which found it impossible to continue last year the grocers were most numerous. The drapery and woolen trades ranked second, the building and timber trades third and agricultural trades fourth. The motor trade, which occupied fifth place in 1931, was supplanted last year by the merchants, brokers and agents.

Stocks on the London exchange have not suffered from the sharp decline recently that has characterized the New York list. While the general trend on the two exchanges is nearly always similar, British securities do not experience such severe fluctuations. Toward the latter part of the year they began a recovery while the New York ones were still plunging to new lows.

Britain's worst year for bankruptcies was 1923, when 5,022 firms went into the hands of receivers. Largely they represented the dwindling of fortunes made in the post-war boom and the weeding out of new business built on an insecure foundation. The new firms left the long-established firms and business generally in stronger shape.

Three Get Life Terms
For Theater Bombing

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Three men, two of them officials of local motion picture projectionists' union, pleaded guilty and were sentenced to life imprisonment today for the bombing of the Midland theater, January 11, in which Frank Alexander, a negro singer, lost his life.

They are Eral J. Lime, president of the sound projectionists' association; E. M. Evans, business agent for the association; and John E. Gelspie, whose police record as the duke of the union leaders.

The trio was charged under a Missouri statute which provides hanging as the maximum penalty for bombing.

Rev. Mr. Lucecock's congregation is made up almost entirely of Americans. He voiced, he said, the majority of all sections of American opinion here. "The American community here," he said, "is as far as I know it, unanimous and indignant in condemning the stupidity and inhumanity that have characterized Japan's entire misnamed 'defense' of Shanghai."

The official Japanese explanations of their bombing from the air under the International Settlement, have carried no weight with Shanghai Americans or foreign residents generally.

"There has been for some time a general acceptance of the fact that the anti-Japanese activities within the Shanghai area included criminal offenses for which the Japanese were entitled to redress and to guarantees that were not forthcoming. Had Japan's resentment found expression in sane and more civilized ways, and had there been the slightest indication toward the international co-operation that is now so emphasized in the Japanese official statements, Japan would have received considerable support from many Americans."

"Indeed, a sizeable section of the American community regrets that Japan has made international co-operation impossible. It is widely felt that the future status of the International Settlement is now so emphasized in the Japanese official statements, Japan would have received considerable support from many Americans."

Traffic on thoroughfares was blocked and trains were considerably delayed. A number of villages in the district of Marao were marooned.

line. Emerging from each ship was a stream of soldiers, although the heaviest movement appeared to have been completed.

As the fresh Japanese troops landed, Japanese bluejackets marched to the docks, apparently waiting their turn to embark on the same transport. Where they were destined to go was unknown to any but the Japanese, and they remained uncommunicative as to what was going on.

Thousands of Japanese troops landed, Japanese bluejackets marched to the docks, apparently waiting their turn to embark on the same transport. Where they were destined to go was unknown to any but the Japanese, and they remained uncommunicative as to what was going on.

Within the yards of warehouses immediately in front of the wharves were several thousand Japanese soldiers awaiting orders. The arms and equipment stacked in military precision, were on the ground about them. There also were many cavalry horses.

In one corner, 500 Japanese soldiers, awaiting orders in the grounds of a Japanese school, played with a half dozen Japanese children. They swung the children on the playground equipment. The youngsters and the soldiers alike laughed gaily in high amusement as the fighters awaited their turn to proceed with the business of battle.

Within were many artillery pieces. How many guns were there it was impossible to tell, but the squares adjacent to the waterfront were filled with them, while a near-by plot was given over to tanks.

The area near the docks became a theatre of activity. Armed Japanese patrols swarmed the streets leading to the wharves to prevent any onlooker approaching the waterfront. Possibly 5,000 soldiers could be seen. What had become of the others was not definitely established.

Many Move to Woosung.

Most of them, however, appeared to have moved down the Whangpoo shore toward the extreme eastern boundaries of the International Settlement in the general direction of Woosung. Another portion had marched into Hongkew, where they were expected to relieve Japanese bluejackets who had been on continuous duty there since the evacuation.

No sooner had the pale sun punctured the blanket of fog and smoke that overhung the city than the artillerymen and the soldiers, some unlimbered their guns and set them echoing over the metropolis. Quiet reigned at Woosung.

During 1931 only 4,055 business firms in Great Britain and Ireland went into the hands of receivers. The preceding year, which was far more favorable for business, saw 4,698 enterprises bankrupt. In Scotland and Ireland there were actually fewer such failures last year than in 1930.

British conservatism in business has come in for much criticism in recent years, yet it has saved hundreds of thousands of enterprises from going to the wall in the present crisis.

The severity of the test to which this conservatism is being put is revealed by the fact that bank clearings dropped 30.8 per cent during the last quarter of 1931 and 16.8 per cent for 1932 as a whole, reflecting a serious decline in business activity. The clearing have slumped from 44,896,077,000 pounds in 1929 to 36,235,989,000 pounds in 1932.

Of all the businesses which found it impossible to continue last year the grocers were most numerous. The drapery and woolen trades ranked second, the building and timber trades third and agricultural trades fourth. The motor trade, which occupied fifth place in 1931, was supplanted last year by the merchants, brokers and agents.

Stocks on the London exchange have not suffered from the sharp decline recently that has characterized the New York list. While the general trend on the two exchanges is nearly always similar, British securities do not experience such severe fluctuations. ## Women Are Attached to Army Defending Shanghai

Following the example of the famous "Battalion of Death," in which Russian women fought during the World War, these Chinese women have attached themselves to the army that is defending Shanghai and Woosung against the Japanese invaders. A body of women similar to those shown were recently reported as a fighting unit of the modern Amazons held an outpost on a road leading to Woosung and successfully repulsed several attacks by a Japanese landing party. Many of the brave women were reported killed in the engagement when they stood up against the fire of Jap machine guns.

BRITISH FAILURES
RECORD INCREASEConservatism Aids Business in Weathering Economic Storm.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(UP)—The average British businessman, an outstanding example of the nation's traditional conservatism, is weathering the financial storms with remarkable strength.

Despite the tremendous slump in business activity, bankruptcies have been only slightly more numerous than in eras of comparative prosperity.

During 1931 only 4,055 business firms in Great Britain and Ireland went into the hands of receivers. The preceding year, which was far more favorable for business, saw 4,698 enterprises bankrupt. In Scotland and Ireland there were actually fewer such failures last year than in 1930.

Mexicans Reiterate
Friendship for U. S.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The interest of all the nations and peoples of North America are in many respects unalterably allied, the newspaper Excelsior declared editorially today, and for that reason, it added, in case of trouble between the United States and Japan, Mexico should incline toward America, in spite of her traditional friendship for Japan.

The editorial was prompted by denials made here and in Washington yesterday that Mexico and the United States had a secret treaty or understanding in the far eastern matter.

SOVIETS ABANDON 'REVOLUTION' PLANWar Against Capitalism Dropped in Favor of Home Problems.

BY EUGENE LYONS.

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(UP)—Efforts to start a world revolution against capitalism have been sidetracked in the Soviet Union by the task of creating a successful socialist state within Soviet frontiers.

The communist party's energies will be devoted exclusively to the problem at home, at least until the end of the second five-year plan, according to opinion expressed by leaders addressing the congress of the communist party here.

Earlier communist gatherings emphasized the necessity and likelihood of a world revolution. The subject has gone practically unmentioned by the delegates now meeting at the Kremlin.

Party leaders referred to the impending collapse of capitalism by citing the economic crisis of the outside world in contrast to progress of the five-year plan. The references did not resemble the fiery summons to revolution that have been heard in the past.

Ninety-five per cent of the speeches have been devoted to purely economic, financial, or technical questions such as one would hear at a chamber of commerce meeting.

It is evident that the party leaders intend to concentrate on industrialization to the exclusion of everything else.

Many speakers did point out the primary importance of the achievement of real socialism here, as an example to the world's proletarians.

American Minister in Shanghai

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Most American residents here are "unwarranted and unjustified fear of aggression," Rev. Emory Lucecock, American pastor of the Shanghai community church, told the Associated Press today.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A lasting solution of the world's economic and financial ills is the ambitious program set for the adjourned Lausanne reparations conference, which, it was officially announced today, will meet in June.

In authoritative quarters it was expected that the conference would be shifted to London, where, at least, it would overshadow the disarmament negotiations.

"The object of the conference," the foreign office announced, "will be to agree on a lasting settlement of the questions raised in the report of the Basel experts and on measures necessary to solve other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for, and may prolong, the present world crisis."

More details concerning the June meetings were expected to be made public tomorrow. France and Belgium, British foreign secretary, returns to London from Geneva. The foreign office declined to make any comment on its communiqué.

BRITISH, FRENCH OFFICIALS
DISCUSS REPARATIONS

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, stopped off here tonight on his way back to London from the Geneva disarmament conference and had a brief chat with Premier Pierre Laval, in which they discussed reparations and Franco-British problems.

They felicitated each other on the agreement, announced in London, for a conference at Lausanne on reparations during June and the procedure to be followed.

A semi-official note expressed the hope that negotiations regarding the prohibition of chemical and bacteriological warfare, mainly concerned with tariffs, would rapidly take a favorable turn.

G. J. WACHENDORFF IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Widely Known Atlantan Was One of South's Leading Florists.

Charles J. Wachendorff, 50, widely known Atlantan and one of the leading florists in the state, died at 10 o'clock Saturday night at his residence, 293 Sunset avenue, N. W. He was stricken ill early in December and had been confined to his home for several weeks. His condition was not considered serious until a few days ago, members of the family said.

The son of a German immigrant, who was one of Atlanta's pioneers, Mr. Wachendorff was joint owner with his two brothers in the firm of Wachendorff Brothers, of 680 Simpson street, N. W., well-known florists. Educated in the public schools of this city, Mr. Wachendorff was born in St. Matthews, Ky., coming here at the age of 6 with his father.

A love of flowers and growing things adapted him well to the business of which he became manager in 1896 at his father's death. He was a life member of the Society of American Florists and was widely known over the south through his interest in flowers.

The firm of Wachendorff Brothers celebrated its 50th anniversary on March 11, 1926. During its existence the father and three sons had been leaders in the city's development, and especially the development of the florist business here. Mr. Wachendorff was general manager of the plant.

A member of the First Presbyterian church, Mr. Wachendorff had taken an ardent interest in its affairs, serving on numerous committees and boards. He was married in 1901 to the former Miss Corrie Neuner, of Louisville, Ky., who survives him.

He also is survived by two brothers, Edward A. Wachendorff and Eugene C. Wachendorff, and one niece, Miss Annie Ramsey, all of whom reside in Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

LITTLE SYMPHONY, HODGSON TO GIVE EMORY PROGRAM

Plans numbers by Hugh Hodgson and the "Valse Des Fleurs," from the Nutcracker Suite by Tchaikovsky, will feature the thirty-seventh Sunday afternoon concert of the Emory University little symphony orchestra this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in the Glenn Memorial church. This will be the last Sunday afternoon concert of the year by the 40-piece orchestra, according to Malcolm H. Dewey, director.

The overture to Handel's "Messiah," in the strict form of a fugue, and Rossini's overture to "Semiramide," typical Italian conception of the overture, will be featured on the program. "The Death," from the Peer Gynt Suite by Grieg, will be given.

Mr. Hodgson will play the "Concerto in K Minor," by Salieri, the piano group will include "Barcarole," "Rubinstein," "Papillon," by Olsen; "Polonaise in C Sharp Minor," by Chopin, and "Reflets dans l'eau," by Debussy.

BANK ROBBER REVEALS SHERIFF AS 'MANAGER'

PORTLAND, Ind., Feb. 13.—(UP)—A convicted bank robber testified in circuit court today that former Sheriff Ira Barton, of Blackford county, conducted a "school" in jail-breaking while he was in office.

Barton is on trial charged with helping rob banks in the vicinity he was elected to protect.

Lorenz Capelli, confessed bank robber, was the principal witness. He said his gang of four men conspired with Barton to rob banks in Hartford City and other towns. Barton was able, he said, to give them perfect "layouts." There was an agreement, he said, that if they were captured Barton would see to it that they escaped.

"Barton told us we wouldn't be in jail six hours, if they took us there," said Capelli. "We all went to the jail at Hartford City several times and Barton explained how we should get out if we got caught."

115-YEAR-OLD NEGRO DIES IN LOUISIANA

LAFAYETTE, La., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Alfred Dorion, negro, one of the oldest if not the oldest resident of this section, died here today at the age of 115 years. He was born in Virginia, but had resided in Louisiana since he was 10 years of age. He had been employed by best-known pioneer families.

FLORIDA MINISTER SEEKS GOVERNORSHIP

Most of Hoarded Cash Believed in Big Bills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Most of the money hoarded in the big bills, a fact that led treasury officials to surmise today that it is persons of comparative wealth who have mainly taken to hoarding.

While the drive went ahead to return unused cash to safe channels that will live business, an official compilation showed that in the 13 months ending with December 31 there was an $808,000,000 increase in currency out in notes of $50 and above. The gain for January alone was $100,000,000.

Officials have been unable exactly to trace the money hoarded, but the opinion was expressed that $50,000 and $100,000 and more account for most of that in hiding.

Feel Old At 40?

Getting Up Nights, Backache, Leg Pains, Loss of Energy, Often Due to Kidney Activity.

There are few things that sap your energy more, than functional kidney inactivity and excess acidity. These are also often the cause of other troubles and worrisome complaints such as: Backache, Getting Up Nights, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuritis, Bone Aches, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Muddy Complexion, Burning, smarting, and Bladder Weakness.

To combat these conditions you really need two different kinds of medicine, because you need two results in fighting these troubles. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their function of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second you need another medicine to soothe

J. J. Haverty To Lecture Today at High Museum of Art; Exhibition by Georgia Artists Attracting Wide Attention

Miss Thelma Ripley and Wendell Jackson, young Atlanta artists, inspecting the collection of paintings by Georgia artists now on exhibition at the High Museum of Art. The portrait between the two is by Christopher Murphy Jr., of Savannah, and is entitled "Miss B."

J. J. Haverty, president of the Atlanta Art Museum and the High Museum of Art, will speak at the museum this afternoon on "Christian Art." The lecture will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock and will be illustrated with a collection of unusually valuable slides secured from the Metropolitan Museum of Art at New York.

No one is better qualified to speak on his subject than Mr. Haverty. Long known as one of the outstanding patrons of art in the south, he has been responsible, more than any other one man, for the growth in art interest and for the development of artistic talent in the south. He is known all over America and in the centers of Europe as a friendly patron and connoisseur and he has accumulated an extremely valuable collection of paintings at his home here. He has only recently returned from one of his frequent visits to Europe and brings facts for his talk today direct from the great museums and art colonies he visited there.

The exhibition of works by the Association of Georgia Artists continues to attract great interest at the museum. There are something like 145 paintings in this showing, all the work of Georgia artists. Three dozen are by Atlanta painters, including especially fine examples from the brush of Marjorie C. Bush-Brown, Wendell Jackson, Ben E. Shute, Kate P. Edwards, Matt L. Jorgenson, Lewis P. Skidmore, Dorothy Perkins and others.

Other large groups have been contributed to the exhibition by the outstanding artists of Savannah, Columbus, Athens and other cities of the state. The pictures will remain on view at the museum on Peachtree street until Tuesday, when they will be packed for a showing scheduled at Columbus.

On February 19 a collection of 100 photographs given by the French government to Oglethorpe University as a peace memorial will be shown. This exhibition is made possible through the generosity of Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe, while the photographs have been attractively framed by Mrs. J. M. High.

Charles Lorisans, French consul in Atlanta, was instrumental in placing this valuable collection in the museum.

On February 21 Mr. Lorisans will speak at the museum on "French Painting," using this collection to illustrate his talk.

SALES TAX SOUGHT ON MANUFACTURES

New Source of Income Needed To Balance Budget.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Widely but thinly spread manufactures sales tax for hundreds of industries is being considered by the house ways and means committee as one of the most important sources of revenue for the new tax bill.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the democratic leader and chairman of the ways and means subcommittee studying the sales tax proposal, today said the tax appeared the most feasible if it could be properly applied and collected. He said it was preferred by American industry generally to heavy taxes on a few big industries.

Rainey held it would be necessary to levy some sort of sales tax in order to obtain the $1,241,000,000 necessary to balance the federal budget in 1933.

The tax would not apply to food-stuffs, medicines or clothing, except possibly furs and similar luxuries, which could be classified as luxuries. Imported articles, including gasoline, would be compelled to bear the same rate of taxes, probably one or two per cent, as domestic products.

The proposed levy is a modified form of the Canadian manufactures sales tax system.

"The theory we are working on," he said, "is to levy the tax on the finished product as it leaves the last manufacturer and is ready for consumption. It would be kept away from the consumer and would not be imposed by the retailer."

Rainey explained that while automobiles, radios and similar articles would be taxed under the plan, the levy would not be as much as if taxes were levied individually on five or six big industries.

The bill would be so drafted that in the event an industry became weaker for any cause, congress would remove its tax without revising the revenue structure.

Rainey said until it was definitely decided how much additional revenue could be obtained from a gift tax, increased individual and corporate income taxes and the rearrangement of the brackets, it could not be decided how heavy the manufactures sales levy should be.

Horowitz, Young Russian Pianist, Will Make Atlanta Debut Feb. 22

Vladimir Horowitz, who will give his first piano recital in Atlanta at the auditorium on the evening of Washington's birthday, has attracted more attention from musicians than any other pianist who has visited this country in many years.

Only 27 years of age, the young Russian stepped into nation-wide fame four years ago when he made his American debut at Carnegie Hall in New York, where he played the great Tchaikovsky concerto with the Philharmonic orchestra. Despite his European successes he was overcome by stage fright, but this disappeared after his first few bars. The applause at the close was declared unprecedented.

Even in the hall which had been the scene of so many great artists' triumphs, and the next day the New York critics declared "Horowitz received the wildest welcome a pianist has received for many years."

Pianists and teachers say Horowitz is a "perfectly sound musician." He is free from mannerisms; his playing is not revolutionary; he does not attempt to destroy one's preconceived ideas of what constitutes good playing. Yet leading critics of Boston and Chicago as well as New York described him as "the most sensational musician since the debut of Heifetz."

Horowitz will be presented at the fifth number of the all-star concert series, which has sponsored an exceptionally successful season of attractions. Seats will go on sale Thursday at the store of Davidson-Paxon Company, where mail orders are being received. Reservations already made by out-of-town music lovers indicate that an unusually large audience will greet the famous Russian.

DRY AGENT INDICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 13.—(AP)—F. A. McCartney, former federal prohibition officer, was indicted by the Montgomery county grand jury today on a charge of first-degree murder for the slaying last November 30 of a Ferrell Day, alias J. L. Harver, in a rooming house here.

McCartney claimed he shot Day in self-defense when the latter attacked him after he and Thelma Anderson, alias Willis, returned from visits to several alleged liquor dealing establishments in the city.

The woman, in a statement to Coroner John J. Diffy, said McCartney shot Day as he sought to escape through a window in the bathroom after the officer had drawn his gun. She said Day was unarmed.

2 Groups of Atlanta Women To Hear Van Paassen Monday

Pierre Van Paassen, who occupies a distinctive niche as a columnist of European news in some of the leading newspapers of the United States, will deliver two lectures on interesting foreign topics Monday—one in the afternoon before the Council of Jewish Women, and the other in the evening under auspices of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

Mr. Van Paassen, who formerly was a writer on the staff of The Constitution and whose continental comments are carried daily in this and other American papers, is in Atlanta on a brief visit among the scenes of his early career as a news-gatherer.

The lecture to the Council of Jewish Women will be delivered in the Temple house on Peachtree street, with the subject, "A Bird's-Eye View of the Jewish World." At 8:30 o'clock Monday night he will speak in Taft hall before the League of Women Voters on "Zigzagging Through Europe and Asia." The evening lecture is open to the public and is expected to prove of unusual interest.

In Paris, where Mr. Van Paassen has his residence, he is enabled to obtain a centralized perspective of continental affairs of note, upon which he comments daily in a newspaper column syndicated under the caption, "The World's Window." Gifted with the heritage of a keen understanding of the continental temperament and viewpoint, Mr. Van Paassen—himself a descendant of the old Flemings of Flanders—shifts the more important and interesting events down to a column of diversified detail which he relates in a captivating style for readers of every walk of life.

These commentaries are generous in scope, embracing, as they do, anything from the attitude of the Spaniard toward the bullfight to the customs in the forbidden purlieus of the Tibetan lamas, and the knowledge upon which this Flemish writer bases his daily stories is largely gained through extended journeys in strange and glamorous, or picturesque places. He recently has completed a series of trips along unbroken journalistic paths into European and Asiatic wildernesses, and it is about his observations in those places that he will speak tomorrow night.

COTTON LABEL FRAUD IS BARED BY SHIPPERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 13.—(AP)—An outbreak of petty cotton frauds was revealed here today by the Southern Cotton Shippers' Association, which announced it would prosecute dealers placing false labels on cotton.

Sam Loring, secretary of the association, said hundreds of dollars were being lost to Memphis and Arkansas brokers, and that the Memphis association planned an investigation that may lead to criminal prosecutions. He said the Arkansas Cotton Brokers Association, Little Rock, had authorized a reward of $100 for information that will lead to convictions.

New Chrysler Six Sedan, '35

UP-TO-DATE means CHRYSLER

Chrysler shows what a motor car should be and have and do . . . to be really up-to-date.

The new Chrysler cars bring the public the greatest engineering developments of modern times.

What is there to match Chrysler's Floating Power? A revolutionary new type of engine suspension—the great patented development that entirely wipes out power tremor at all car speeds.

Or match Chrysler's new Automatic Clutch that is completely Automatic?

Or match Chrysler's real Free Wheeling? The Free Wheeling unit is entirely separate and located at the rear of the transmission.

Or match Chrysler's new Silent Gear Selector? Enables anyone to select a higher or a lower gear at any car speed with no more effort than moving a lead pencil.

Or match Chrysler's rigid Double-Drop Girder-Truss Frame? It is a distortion-proof foundation for Chrysler's strong, sound-insulated All-Steel Bodies.

Or match Chrysler's self-equalizing Hydraulic Brakes? With new drums of steel with a cast-iron lining fused to the steel—multiplying brake life and brake efficiency many times.

Or match Chrysler's Oilite Squeak-Proof Springs? Springs that supply their own lubrication and never, never squeak.

Or match Chrysler's style, Chrysler's luxury, Chrysler's speed? The new Chryslers invite any and all comparisons. Have you seen them? Have you driven one?
